Toodles Settles for $19,500

LEMBERG FALLS

MANSFIELD PAYS GIRL IN LOVE SUIT

On the heels of the exclusive announcement in yesterday's AMERICAN that Harry K. Mansfield had sold his famous resort, Ferncroft Inn, at Middleton, to Hap Ward, the comedian, came the news today that Mansfield has settled the "Toodles" breach of promise suit for $19,500.

"Toodles," who is Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan, the actress, put her original damage figure at $50,000. The trial of her suit, with its sensational testimony and its final disagreement by the jury, is fresh in the public mind.

NEITHER SIDE SATISFIED.

It is known that of the $19,500 which Miss Ryan is to receive $5,000 will have to be paid out for her personal expenses in Boston during the trial and general expenses in hunting up witnesses, stenographers' fees and so forth.

This leaves $14,500 which will be divided between Miss Ryan, Sherman L. Whipple, her advisory counsel, and D. H. Coakley, her trial lawyer.

Just what the division is has not been disclosed.

MAKES COURT ENTRY.

Mansfield entered the agreement of settlement, personally today with Clerk Gilchrist of the Suffolk Superior Court. The entry reads:

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Elizabeth M. Ryan Suffolk County
vs.
Henry K. Mansfield Superior Court

It is agreed by and between the parties in the above entitled action that a judgment may be entered for neither party, and that no suit shall hereafter be brought in the same cause.

(Signed) Daniel H. Coakley,
Attorney for the Plaintiff
(Signed) Michael L. Sullivan,
Attorney for the Defendant

Attorney Michael L. Sullivan, counsel for Mr. Mansfield, said today:

"There was an agreement between the parties in this suit not to mention the amount paid in settlement, and any figure named must be understood not to come from me. I have not even mentioned the sum to my office force.

"I imagine both my client and Miss Ryan are dissatisfied over the amount. Each party generally is in a case like this.

"Mr. Coakley and I happened to meet yesterday. We went up to Mr. Coakley's office. Each of us had kept more or less in touch with our clients and we went ahead and drew up an agreement. Mr. Mansfield was not there. Miss Ryan, I understand, was in Mr. Coakley's office, but I did not see her."

"How about Mr. Coakley's statement, at the time of the trial of the

Austrian Fleet Raids 200 Miles of Italian Coast

By STEVEN BURNETT,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA, June 23.—Dashing out from their base, Austrian cruisers and destroyers have made another successful raid upon the Adriatic coast of Italy, it was officially announced today. They swept along the Italian coast for nearly 200 miles, shelled railroad property, sank one steamer and returned safely to port.

The official announcement of the latest naval raid follows:

"On June 17-18 several Austro-Hungarian cruisers and destroyers made a raid on the Italian coast from the frontier as far as Fano. They damaged semaphore stations at the mouth of the Tagliamento and near Pesaro, shelled railroad bridges near Rimini and sank an Italian steamer. All the crew were saved.

"All our units returned safely."

No information concerning such a raid had ever been given out by the Berlin or London War Office.

U. S. HOPE IN ACT OF KAISER

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The British memorandum dealing with the seizure by Great Britain of American goods consigned to neutral European ports reached the State Department today, it was officially announced. The document will not be made public until it has been studied by Secretary Lansing.

Meanwhile, department officials would not indicate whether this note would cause any change to be made in the protest to England on which the department has been working for two months.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The suppression by the German government of the paper which has been publishing the belligerent articles of Count Reventlow is regarded here as one of the most favorable signs that has come from Berlin in connection with the preparations of the reply to the American note on the Lusitania tragedy.

A private dispatch received at Copenhagen from Berlin states that the suppression of the Tages Zeitung was ordered personally by Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg.

The action of the Kaiser, which suspended publication of the Deutsche Tagezeitung, is interpreted here to mean that Germany wishes to avoid anything which is likly to work against a peaceful adjustment of the difficulties between that nation and

GALICIAN CITY BIG LOSS

By STEVEN BURNETT,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA, June 23.—The recapture of Lemberg, capital of Galicia, was officially announced today. In reporting the recapture of this important city the Austro-Hungarian headquarters stated that it was taken by the second army, after a violent fight.

The city is celebrating the recapture of Lemberg enthusiastically. Within a short time after the official announcement flags were flying from practically every house in the capital. A public holiday was proclaimed by the municipal authorities.

The enthusiasm over Lemberg is greater than that over Przemysl because of the sentiment attached to the Galician capital. It is a seat of art and learning and before the war had a population of about 170,000.

From a military viewpoint the recapture of Lemberg is of vast importance to the Teuton troops. Controlling a network of railways it is of the highest value to the army holding it. It is believed that the army which took the city also captured a vast quantity of supplies, as the Russians had been using Lemberg as their main base since its occupation early in the war.

It was reported earlier from Berlin that Emperor William would lead the triumphant army of General Von Mackensen into Lemberg.

Lemberg marks the victorious culmination of the great offensive campaign opened by the German and Austrian armies early in May.

Military experts in Berlin are divided in opinion as to what the next step of the general staff will be, but Governor Slaton of Georgia and his wife, who are in peril because of the commutation of Leo Frank's sentence. The picture was made in a wheel chair at Atlantic City.

GOVERNOR SLATON UPHELD BY GEORGIA'S BEST PEOPLE, HE SAYS

ATLANTA, Ga., June 23.—"While I decided the Frank case without regard to anticipated approval or disapproval, excepting that of my own conscience," said Governor John M. Slaton, "I am personally pleased with the thousands of expressions of approval received since the announcement of my decision. It is especially gratifying to note that the majority of them have come from my fellow Georgians.

"These latter came from men in all walks of life and all sections of the State. My decision is commended by many citizens of high standing in these communities, where, no doubt, there has been a strong feeling of disapproval among the body of the people. Scores of men in public life, many of whom have been and are my political opponents, have approved my action.

"These expressions from leaders of thought among my own people, bearing the marks of all sincerity, convince me that the body of the people of Georgia have not meant, and do not mean, to do injustice to any man, and that when they come to know the case, as I sought to know it, they will approve my action.

"I also greatly appreciate the many expressions of approval received from other States.

"The telegrams and letters received are so numerous that it would be impracticable to attempt a summary of them."

ESCAPE STORY IS TOLD BY THAW

By L. A. R. REEKER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Harry K. Thaw, fighting for freedom after nine years' imprisonment for the slaying of Stanford White, took the witness stand as the first witness today in the trial to have his sanity tested by a jury. Thaw took the stand after his attorney, John B. Stanchfield, and deputy attorney General Cook, had made their opening addresses to the jury.

Thaw was calm and apparently sure of himself when he was sworn. He wore a dark blue serge suit and black tie. It was his first appearance in court before a jury as a plaintiff and not a criminal.

Thaw himself took the stand this afternoon and told a strong story to support his sanity.

With a smiling glance at his mother and sister, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, Thaw began his testimony with the usual answers. He gave his name as Harry Kendall Thaw, his age as 43 and his birthplace as Pittsburgh.

THAW CALM ON STAND.

After the usual preliminary questions Thaw told of his escape from Matteawan August 17, 1913, and his subsequent adventures in Canada and New Hampshire. His story was the same substantially as he related in the conspiracy trial last March.

Unless the plans of the State are changed Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will not be witness against her husband. It was learned today that she is not in the city.

It is expected the strongest card to be played by Thaw counsel will be the introduction of the Federal Lunacy Commission appointed in New Hampshire. This commission declared Thaw sane.

MANY WOMEN IN COURT.

The usual Thaw "gallery" was on hand long before court convened, besieging the bailiffs for seats, but only [illegible] spectators could gain admission. Of these a large number were women.

Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, Thaw's sister, was the first of the family to arrive. She took a seat within the rail and in a moment Thaw, brought from Ludlow Street Jail, joined her. Shortly afterward Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the prisoner's mother, entered with Josiah Thaw, his [illegible].

John B. Stanchfield opened the proceedings by stating Thaw's case to the jury.

"You are here under peculiar circumstances," Stanchfield said. "You are to pass on the question of whether Harry K. Thaw is now sane; not whether he was sane or insane a decade ago, but whether insane today."

"UNWRITTEN LAW."

The lawyer then defined the "unwritten law" as [illegible] applied to cases similar to Thaw's killing of White because of his alleged mistreatment of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

"In a case," said Stanchfield, "where a husband finds his wife has become the victim of another man's lure, he may shoot down that man on the street and a jury of [illegible] men will acquit him, the majority believe that the campaign against Russia will be pressed instead of halting at Lemberg and withdrawing troops for action in the western theatre of war.

LEMBERG, GALICIAN CAPITAL, IS RETAKEN BY THE TEUTONS

RUSSIANS CLAIM A VICTORY.

These experts point out that conditions are highly favorable for smashing Russia, asserting that Napoleon's invasion of Russia was carried on in the rigors of Winter, a fact which foredoomed him to disaster, while the Teutonic troops have the entire Summer and Fall before them to accomplish their task.

By the capture of the [illegible] agricultural provinces of Russia the Germans will be able to replenish their stores of food which have thus far not been greatly depleted.

Dispatches from Petrograd say that an important Russian victory over the right wing of the Austro-German forces in Galicia is announced in the latest official statement from the Russian War Office. This statement declares the Teutonic troops have been defeated in a six-day battle on the Dniester River front, the Russians taking more than five thousand prisoners. This success, it adds, will prevent Russians being withdrawn from Galician capital, a move that was menaced by the Austro-German right wing.

The official Russian statement follows:

"In the Dniester district a complete success has been attained of the day's fighting near Snowidow. The Russians captured over 2,000 prisoners.

"On the Zlochof (Zalarizsky) front during the night of the 20th and after fierce fighting the Russian troops captured 2,000 prisoners.

"In the Shavli region on Saturday the Russian cavalry captured and destroyed on the road between Telshe and Loukunishki an enemy transport partly loaded with cartridges. A large number of the convoy was killed. Several parties of the enemy, Jager's cavalry patrol, were killed or dispersed. After a stubborn fight on the Bistowa on Monday the Russian infantry advanced slightly.

ANNIHILATE BATTALION.

"On the Tanew front the Russian infantry crossed the river at Ulooka Sunday and annihilated a battalion of an Austrian regiment. On Monday night fierce enemy attacks north of the line of the Zieshchanow, at Rawa Russka were repulsed. In the last twenty-four hours the Russians captured in these combats 840 prisoners, including three officers and three machine guns.

"In the direction of Lemberg there has been an artillery-rifle duel. On the Dniester the Russians gained great successes below Nizhniow. The Austrians crossed the Dniester with considerable forces which stubbornly fought against the Russians since the fifteenth.

"The encounters terminated on Monday at daybreak with complete Russian success. The Russian infantry is storming a series of fortified positions at Snowitow in spite of desperate resistance. We took over 3,500 prisoners and numerous machine guns.

"The enemy retreated in disorder beyond the Dniester, pursued by Cossacks, who crossed four of the enemy's bridges across the Dniester and continue to pursue the enemy on the right bank.

THAW ON STAND AS FIRST WITNESS IN SANITY TRIAL

on the ground that he was temporarily unbalanced, but that does not mean that the man is insane nine years after."

Thaw is now forty-four years old. Thirteen or fourteen years ago he met a pretty vivacious young girl named Evelyn Nesbit. She attracted him and he fell in love with her. They were married. In a burst of confidence she told him how, in her 'teens, she was lured by White to a place maintained by him and there seduced.

A woman named May McKenzie told Thaw subsequently that White told her that Evelyn Nesbit would not stick to Thaw long. White said he would soon "get her back."

Thaw in those days was not the Thaw of today. He had not been chastened by confinement and sobered by years. These tales incensed him. On a June night he saw White in Madison Square Garden and shot him dead.

JEROME QUOTED.

Mr. Stanchfield then read from the record of the second trial quoting William Travers Jerome's statement to the jury in which Jerome said Stanford White deserved to be killed.

In the second trial, continued Stanchfield, the defence was insanity. Here is something else said to the jury at that time by Jerome:

"No one has contended that Thaw has been insane during the two years he has been in the Tombs. Nobody says he is insane as he sits here in court."

"Not guilty, but insane," was the verdict of that second jury. That meant that the jurors believed Thaw when he shot White was so temperamentally upset under such an emotional strain that he did not sense his act. The jury did not believe him insane at the time of the verdict, else it would not have been so phrased. The lawyer then reviewed Thaw's escape from Matteawan. He said Thaw was sent to Matteawan "Until released by due process of the law." When he could not obtain release by habeas corpus or by certificate of recovery, when he knew he was sane, he had a right to walk out, said Stanchfield.

LEMBERG A MODERN CITY OF AMERICAN "BOOM" TYPE

Describing Lemberg, for the possession of which the mightiest trial of strength of the war has been held, the National Geographic Society, early in the struggle, issued the following:

Lemberg under Austrian overlordship has been a stronghold of Polish national consciousness. Almost unhampered by the imperial authorities, it has administered, as Galicia's capital, the last remnant of Polish Poland.

When the Galician Diet was formed in 1861 Lemberg had fallen from her brave position of the days of the Polish kingdom. The city was poverty crushed, unimproved, undrained and hence, unhealthy, with no schools and, generally, upon the verge of ruin.

Today, aroused by the Constitution of 1866, after fifty years of hopeful effort, the tide of invasion swept over a beautiful, intensely modern city, full of fine, substantial buildings, of lovely parks, of up-to-date, richly stocked shops, of excellent schools and colleges, of great monuments and expensive public works.

The destructive tide of battle rolled over the careful work of two generations and is now driving back again upon it.

HAD AMERICAN "BOOM."

Before the outbreak of the present war there was no city of Lemberg's size in Europe upon the streets of which one might find more alert, vivacious life. The city had enjoyed a typical American "boom" for more than a generation and its people had more of an air of buoyant confidence than any other Polish community.

Industries were growing and the commission and transit trade of the city was attaining the importance of this trade under the old kingdom. From a small, bitterly poor community, Lemberg had progressed to the position of a wealthy metropolis of 200,000 inhabitants.

The Galician capital lies in a sharply cut valley embroidered on every hand by well-wooded hills. The parks and promenades of the city reach out into the hills, where some of the finest walks and garden spots have been laid out.

Beyond the suburbs of the capital little Polish villages straggle over the country roads, and before great armies passed this way flocks of thousands upon thousands of ducks and geese, for which Galicia enjoyed no small measure of fame, met the traveler's eyes everywhere.

The insignificant little stream, Peltew, an affluent of the Bug, flows by the city.

FOURTH AUSTRIAN CITY.

Lemberg lies 468 miles north-east of Vienna by rail and 210 miles east-southeast of Cracow. It is about fifty miles from the Russian border.

The capital is a main station upon trunk lines to Odessa, Czernowitz, capital of Bukowina; Breslau, in Germany, and Budapest in Hungary. It is the fourth city in size in the Austrian empire, coming after Vienna, Prague and Triest.

Commercially and industrially, as well as politically and educationally, it is the most important city in Galicia. Its factories turn out machinery, iron wares, matches, stearin, candles and naphtha.

Besides being the seat of the city economic organizations and of the government of the crownland Lemberg is an important religious centre, the seat of three archbishops of the Roman Catholic, the United Greek and the United American churches.

The University of Lemberg was founded by Emperor Joseph II. in 1784, and since 1871 its language of instruction has been Polish.

There are important museum collections in the city, among them collections all important to the student of the early life and customs of the country.

Liner Carrying Americans Tried to Ram Sea Diver

By International News Service.

BERLIN, June 23 (by wireless).—Germany's charge that British merchant ships are making war upon German submarines, the Overseas News Agency today issued the following:

The London Daily Chronicle reports that the Anchor line steamer Cameronia from New York, with many Americans board, attempted several times to ram a hailing submarine, which finally submerged and disappeared.

The Chronicle's story is taken here as evidence that should convince America that British captains risk the lives of American passengers, and that as long as they follow such tactics no modification can be made in Germany's submarine policy.

French Capture Sondermach in Upper Alsace

PARIS, June 23.—French troops have made important progress in their renewed drive through Alsace toward the Rhine. Today's official communique announces the capture of Sondernach, a town south of Metzeral on a branch of the Fecht River. Located on the crest of a series of heights, this town dominates a large section.

To offset the French offensive in Alsace, the Germans have launched severe attacks at La Fontenelle. These have resulted in a slight gain for the Kaiser's troops, according to the communique.

U. S. HOPEFUL IN KAISER'S ORDER

the United States, and that the Kaiser's government intends to curb all jingoistic utterances while the reply to the American note is being considered by the Foreign Office.

DENOUNCED U. S. ATTITUDE.

Count Reventlow has been regarded as a firebrand in the present delicate situation. Since the sinking of the Lusitania and the protest of the United States which followed the loss of American lives, Count Reventlow has insisted strongly that Germany should concede nothing to this country and that it must carry on its submarine warfare along the lines originally followed; that is, a submarine should strike wherever she finds her prey without giving the doomed vessel notice of search or seizure.

Only a few days ago Count Reventlow published a scathing arraignment of the American position and urged that no concession be made by the Kaiser and his advisers.

The Count also assailed Dr. Eugene Zimmerman, director of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger because of his suggestion that possibly America is right legally in permitting the sale of munitions of war to the allies.

Announcement that the paper which has been carrying these articles will not appear for an indefinite period is regarded as a favorable sign in official and diplomatic circles in Washington. It indicates at least that the German government is not bitterly antagonistic to the American position and seeks an amicable and calmly considered adjustment of the present difficulties.

That the tone of the German reply will be conciliatory if it is not final is a belief encouraged by these latest reports from the German capital.

The preliminary draft of the German reply has been completed, according to semi-official advices received here. In this connection it is also gratifying to officials to note that big business interests of Germany are urging that a conciliatory attitude be shown in the German reply to the United States, and this influence may aid in offsetting that of the militarists who are insisting that the Kaiser permit no change in the present method of submarine warfare.

FIRES FOLLOW CALIFORNIA QUAKES

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The earthquake shock in the Imperial Valley in California was recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown University observatory here. Father Tondorf, the astronomer in charge, announced today. Two well defined shocks were noted, the first lasting from 11:15 p. m. until 11:27 p. m. and the second from 12:12 a. m. until 12:25 a. m. The tremors were of equal intensity.

EL-CENTRO, Cal., (near Mexican border), June 23.—The loss of life here and in other towns and cities of this section of the Imperial Valley, which was rocked by earthquake shocks last night, is indicated at twenty persons killed, according to latest reports today. The property loss is estimated at $1,000,000, a large part of it being due to fires that broke out after the tremors.

Two fires broke out in Calexico after the earthquake had leveled several buildings.

Martial law was proclaimed there early today to prevent looting. Similar action was taken in the town of Mexicali, just across the Mexican border. American troopers are patrolling the streets of Calexico.

The earthquake extended over the period from 8:02 p. m. to 2:40 p. m. Some light tremors were also felt early this morning, but they are believed to have caused no material damage.

BIG HOTEL COLLAPSES.

Early reports had stated that the loss of life from the earthquake would probably range from ten to thirty. Later advices indicated that this estimate was greatly exaggerated. A number of buildings in El-Centro, the largest town in the vallew and the county seat of Imperial County, were more or less wrecked, including the four-story Barbara Worth Hotel, which partially collapsed and several persons were injured.

It was reported from Calexico that many gambling places in Mexicali, the Mexican town across the line, had collapsed and that there were from ten to twenty victims, several of them being killed. This was later denied. Heber, a small town a few miles from El-Centro, is said to have sustained heavy damage, both from shock and fire.

The water system of the Imperial valley, its greatest asset, was not damaged.

The greatest property damage, according to reports, occurred in this city. The four-story concrete and brick Barbara Worth Hotel collapsed and is in ruins. One man sustained a broken leg. The Holton Power Company, the ice and cold storage plant, the gas plant and the Delta Mercantile Company, all owned by W. H. Holt and associates, were damaged. The mercantile company, a wholesale grocery house with $60,000 stock, was burned.

MASONIC TEMPLE DAMAGED.

The Masonic temple, built a year ago, caved in on one side. The Princess Hotel was badly damaged and bricks from the top of the structure were dislodged and hurled to the street, three stories below. The Valley Press and the Progress, the two newspapers in El-Centro, are out of commission with heavy timbers and masonry scattered over their plants. The streets are being patrolled to prevent looting, although good order prevails.

The walls of many brick buildings [illegible] cracked and all the windows in town were broken.

[illegible] district of Calexico is in ruins. Two shocks rocked Calexico between 8 and 9 o'clock last night and another tremor was felt at 4 this morning. Property damage was estimated at $200,000 in Calexico alone. There were no deaths in this city.

Seven persons were killed at Mexicali on the Mexican side of the international boundary.

Martial law was declared today in Calexico. All business was suspended in Calexico and Mexicali. Telegrams have been sent to Washington urging the government to declare a bank holiday.

Considerable damage was done in Holtville.

Ruins of the Barabara Worth Hotel here were probably the most spectacular of the quake.

MRS. ALEXINA C. BARRELL, lyceum manager, who says she put Alfred Noyes before the Boston public.

PAID HIS WAY, SAYS MRS. BARRELL

Mrs. Alexina C. Barrell, manager of a lyceum bureau on Boylston street, today explained she had Alfred Noyes, the well-known English poet, arrested in a civil action as he was leaving the Phi Beta Kappa exercises at Harvard, because she thought he had treated her unjustly.

She told how Noyes had come to Boston "helpless as a babe in the woods," adding:

"I had to arrange social entertainments for him, have his baggage checked, arrange for his taxi across Boston, and have him taken to Wellesley and to various functions, often at my expense. In spite of this, Mr. Noyes did everything possible to exclude me.

"He came here from New York in an upper berth on a sleeper. I sent him back on the boat, with a stateroom, at my expense.

"Long before Mr. Noyes came to Boston, I had made elaborate arrangements for his lectures. I got dates for his appearance in the Lowell Institute course that crowded out other distinguished persons.

"During an interview with Mr. Noyes we agreed that I was to get a nominal commission on his lectures. He has made no effort to pay me.

"I arranged for Mr. Noyes to be the guest of the Twentieth Century Club, but he didn't want to go because he would get no fee, and pleaded he had a cold. He was willing to forego a great honor because there was no money in it.

"The papers had to be served on Mr. Noyes when they were, because we couldn't tell when he would be in this State again. I was about to leave for the festivities at Harvard when I received my husband's telephone message. We arranged the time of the arrest so there would be no embarrassment to Harvard, because that is my husband's college.

"The amount for which I am suing, $1,800, will never recompense me for my services to Mr. and Mrs. Noyes. I am prosecuting him as a matter of principle."

HINGHAM TO HAVE CIRCUS SATURDAY

Hingham is to have a circus, all her own, managed and executed by local talent.

The town is to witness the astonishing sights, next Saturday afternoon and evening, that go with a one sawdust ring. There are rumors of boxing and wrestling matches, and the bill-boards announce Jitney dancing in the town hall after the big show.

Hinghamites never had such a circus before, but now they have decided to shake some conventionalities to the winds and to unfurl the side show canvas they are going to outdo all other shows, and have a ring mistress to help crack the circus whip and to keep things moving.

Miss Ardra Soule will hold this honorable position and will be assisted by George A. Cole, as ring master.

Seventy-five of Hingham's most talented young people will take part in the performance, which will begin with a parade inside the mammoth tent, planned to accommodate 1,500 people.

General Manager Mrs. Charles E. Clapp will have control of arrangements with the help of Mrs. Susan B. Willard, regent of the Old Colony Chapter of the D. A. R., the organization responsible for Hingham's first circus.

The circus posters tell of wonderful feats by Mrs. Kilgore and her Crazy Coots, stunts by boy scouts, wild west daring, music by country band, wrestling, boxing, clowns, elephants, trick horses, and dozens of side show curiosities.

Old Grads Rule at Harvard Today

Today is "Old Grads" day at Harvard. The graduating class having no regular exercises, the day will be given over almost entirely to alumni visitors, hundreds of whom have come from far and near to attend the graduating exercises.

There is only one student event scheduled for today and that is of as much interest to the alumni as it is to the students. This is the second game of the Harvard-Yale series, which will be played in the stadium this afternoon. It is expected a record crowd will attend.

Classes as far back as 1860 have prepared interesting adn entertaining features for those members who are attending their class reunions. The program includes dinners, out-of-town motor trips, receptions, luncheons and even sports for athletic meets have been arranged so that members of '85, '00, '05 and '09 will be seen trying to imitate their old prowess on the track.

Colby Gives Degree to Boston Educator

At commencement at Colby University, Waterville, Me., today, a distinctive honor was conferred upon Assistant Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah E. Burke of Boston, who is also a member of the Massachusetts State Board of Education. He received the degree of Litt. D.—Doctor of Letters—the highest degree of honor conferred by any college and given only to those who have made a mark in the world of letters.

Mr. Burke was graduated from Colby twenty-five years ago, and two years following he was superintendent of schools in Waterville. He was one year in a similar position in Marlboro, Mass., then ten years at the head of the schools in Lawrence. Since 1905 he has been assistant superintendent of schools in Boston.

Suffragists to Parade Oct. 16

To impress the voters of Massachusetts with the enormous numbers of Massachusetts women who want the right to vote, the Bay State suffragists have just decided to have another parade, which will outrival last year's spectacle. The date selected is October 16, just two weeks before the men of the State will decide whether the women of the Commonwealth are to be given the ballot.

Mrs. Gertrude Halliday Leonard will have practical charge of this year's work. The remainder of the committee will include Alice Stone Blackwell, president; Mrs. Ellen F. Adams, Cambridge, vice-president, and Mrs. Evelyn Peabody Coe, secretary.

WOMAN PICKING FLOWERS IS ATTACKED

The Winchester police are today searching for a man who attacked Mrs. William A. LeFavour of No. 4 Herrick street, Winchester, while she was picking flowers with her daughter, Rosamond, eleven, in the Middlesex Fells reservation.

Mrs. LeFavour, who is well known in Winchester society, and her daughter, were walking in the Fells when a man came up behind them and spoke to Mrs. LeFavour, asking her for some flowers.

He seized Mrs. LeFavour's wrist and a struggle followed.

Little Rosamond ran across the field, over a stone wall, to the barn of Fred E. Snider. A farmhand there grabbed a pitchfork and ran to the scene of the attack. The assailant, seeing him coming, made off toward Border road before the rescuer reached him.

Mrs. LeFavour was not injured, although there were marks of the man's fingers on her wrists, but she suffered severely from the shock and fright.

Lansing Gets Degree.

UTICA, N. Y., June 23.—Robert Lansing, acting Secretary of State, has been awarded the degree of doctor of laws at Colgate University.

'Help Yourself' Day for Two; Both Escape

Today was "Help Yourself Day" along Washington street and in Adams square, as near as the police of Station 2 could make out.

Charles C. Tirrell of Rockland, Mass., came into town to make some purchases. He was standing in front of No. 248 Washington street with a dollar bill in each hand when a youth came along and selected the newer of the two. Tirrell chased him as far as the Old State House and then ran out of breath.

Mrs. Elizabeth Durone, seventy-five, of the West End, was standing in Adams square when a young man approached her and gallantly offered to escort her through the maze of teams and cars. He guided her with one hand and in the other volunteered to carry her shopping bag. When they reached the opposite side of the square the young man opened the bag, took Mrs. Durone's pocketbook, containing $2 and fled.

Mrs. Durone described him to a policeman as being about twenty-five, five feet seven, and weighing about 125 pounds. He was light complexioned and wore a dark suit and straw hat.

Trolley Ride and Dance.

MILITIA STILL GUARD SLATON

Slaton was a man with a legal mind. I knew he had the evidence. I knew he was considering the evidence carefully. The only other two men with legal minds who inspected it thoroughly were already decided in my favor.

"Hence by sheer logic I knew a man like Governor Slaton must decide as they had already decided."

"Were you anxious during the last few hours before the time set for your execution?" Frank's visitor asked him.

LOGICAL REASONING.

"Not at all," he replied firmly. "I had reasoned the thing over and I knew that it must be as it was. I did not hope—I was certain. It was plainly a matter of logical reasoning."

"But you were overcome when the news that commutation had been given to you. Were you not?" the prisoner was asked.

A flush came to his shallow cheeks as he responded:

"Only three persons in the world know what happened then, and none of those three will ever tell.

"They are my wife, Sheriff Mangum and myself.

"I cannot tell you how much my wife has meant to me during the past two years of horror. I do not say this in the usual enthusiasm that a man displays toward the woman he has married. But my wife has been everything to me—she has been staunch, loyal, determined. She almost fainted when the sheriff brought news from Governor Slaton."

FEELS GRATEFUL.

Speaking of the deep gratitude he felt toward the Governor, Frank added that he was also grateful to the warden at Milledgeville prison who had treated him kindly since his arrival.

"I thank the people of New York for their sympathy," he added.

"I appreciate their efforts to help me. Whether or not they have benefited me is still a mooted question."

Frank asked repeatedly about conditions in Atlanta. He told about his secret ride by night to the prison, and said that he hoped to soon become acquainted with his new surroundings. He is dressed in the black and white striped suit of the lowest grade prison, and the mechanical eventless life of the 360 prisoners seemed to have completely upset him. So weakened is his physical condition that it is doubtful whether or not he will be put at field work soon.

SLATON SURE HE'S RIGHT.

When for the first time since Saturday the Governor left his home he was escorted by a heavy guard.

"I am sure I have done right," he exclaimed at the State House. "Time will vindicate me. When the people of Georgia become calmer, when they study my decision, they will realize that I would have been unworthy of the position I hold had I allowed Leo Frank to go to his death."

Pictures to Identify Dead of Lusitania

TOODLES' LOVE SUIT SETTLED

suit, that he would be glad to try the case every year until further notice?" Attorney Sullivan was asked.

He laughed and replied:

"Well, the case had not been marked for another trial. It wouldn't have come up till Fall anyway."

The price which Hap Ward gave Mansfield for Ferncroft is estimated at $50,000. On this basis, Mansfield has his Ferncroft cares off his hands, has settled the "Toodles" case and is over $30,000 to the good—outside of legal fees.

The actual settlement of the breach of promise suit was made, of course, through the lawyers for each side. But ever since the mistrial of the suit Mansfield has been wondering if he would have to go through the grilling court experience for a second time.

Mansfield, the story goes, has broached offers of settlement from time to time, saying to "Toodles'" lawyer:

"Well, can't we settle this thing up?"

REPORT PREVIOUS OFFER.

Mansfield's first offer, according to this version, was $10,000.

It was laughed at.

Then Mansfield "raised the ante," as gamblers say, by $5,000. This was declined. The "Toodles" side was holding out for $25,000.

But finally a compromise was attained at $19,500.

Mansfield is keeping his plans for the future pretty well to himself, as is Miss Ryan, but it is whispered that Miss Ryan has bought a mansion on the South Shore which can easily be remodeled into an auto inn.

The "Toodles" settlement is in the form of an agreement signed by Daniel J. Coakley, acting for Miss Ryan, and by Michael F. Sullivan, acting for Mr. Mansfield. It reads:

> It is agreed by and between the parties that in the action entitled Elizabeth M. Ryan vs. Harry K. Mansfield, that a judgment may be entered for neither party and that no suit shall hereafter be brought in the same cause."

TRIAL OF SEVEN WEEKS.

The famous "Toodles" trial lasted seven full weeks. There were twenty-six days of taking of evidence, and one whole day was used up in the arguments, and another half day in the judge's charge to the jury. The cost of the trial is estimated at $8,400 on the part of the Suffolk County treasury. The cost to each side is estimated at about $5,000 exclusive of counsel fees.

The jury wrangled for twenty-five hours and finally reported a disagreement. It was generally believed that the jury stood ten to one in favor of "Toodles," with one juror not voting.

The testimony in the trial, while centering around the exploits of "Toodles" at Ferncroft, in Mansfield's apartments in the Back Bay and in New York, brought out most sensational stories of parties of otherwise most respectable men at Ferncroft.

Testimony was introduced that "Toodles" was lavish with her kisses to such an extent that to have been slighted proved one was unknown. Just as much testimony was introduced by those whom "Toodles had kissed," in denial.

Stories of card games with marked cards, of roulette wheels with contrivances that made it impossible for the house to lose, and other sensations at Ferncroft were also described and denied during the trial.

Miss Ryan has testified that she had presided at these games, and had been taught by Mansfield how to use the "thingamajig," as the roulette contrivance was called in court, and how to mark cards for identification.

SIEGEL AT JAIL HOUNDED BY WOMAN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 23.—Mrs. Baker, the militant leader of his minority creditors, followed Henry Siegel to the prison doors. The gratings had no more than clanged behind the aged department store head when Mrs. Baker appeared in the office of Warden William H. Craig and demanded that Siegel be given the hardest work the prison offered.

"He's been living on the fat of the land while depositors in his bank are starving," said Mrs. Baker.

The warden declined to assign Siegel to manual labor, saying his condition did not permit it. He offered, however, to let Mrs. Baker speak with Siegel.

"No, not now," said Mrs. Baker. "But when you see him you might ask him when I get my $5,000 back."

Siegel today gave for the first time his explanation of the underlying causes of the failure of his enterprises. It was, he said, the Boston store.

"The Boston store wrecked us," he declared. "Had we kept out of that town we would have been all right. As it was, the Boston store was a hoodoo, a loser from the start. If I could have devoted all my time to it I could have made it pay, I think, but I had too many other things to care for. I was spread out too thin.

"First and last that Boston store cost me $3,500,000. That was the load that broke my financial back."

Judge Logan Gives Pickpockets Warning

Judge Logan of the South Boston District Court served notice today that if any more pickpockets were convicted before him he would impose the maximum sentence, which is two years in prison.

He had before him three young men accused of picking the pockets of Charles L. Powers of C street. When Powers found his pocketbook on the floor of the car in front of the trio, the conductor closed the doors and ordered the car run along Broadway to Station 6. Powers said he had $11 in the pocketbook. Court imposed sentence of one year upon each.

According to Sergeant Murphy the prisoners had previous records. They gave their names as Max Klein of Hanson street, Max Weise of Buffalo and Edward Harris of Connecticut.

Woman Drinks Poison.

MIDDLEBORO MAN IS STATE BAKER

John G. Parker Claims That He Has Been Cured by Plant Juice.

Every cell in the body contains certain inorganic elements, the presence of which are essential to the proper performance of the cell's functions. When any of these inorganic elements are lacking, disease will result and will grow until the missing elements are restored either by nature or by some artificial means. The absence of any of these inorganic salts brings on derangement of the stomach. This affection can spread to any organ in the body and can soon affect the liver, kidneys, bowels or the intestinal tract and eventually can affect the lungs.

From this it can be seen how important it is that some method be used to restore the missing elements to the cells. Plant Juice is the ideal medium for this. It is a formula composed of distilled inorganic matter in exactly the proportions that the body requires. It cleans the alimentary canal, is an efficient nerve-builder and builds up the general health by putting in shape those two most important organs, namely, the stomach and the intestines.

Many testimonials are daily received from local people relative to the wonderful curative properties of Plant Juice. One was recently received from Mr. John G. Parker, who resides in Middleboro, Mass. Mr. Parker has lived in and around Boston for 15 years, and is a well known baker, being employed by the State of Massachusetts. He stated:

"I had suffered from stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion for some time. Everything I would eat would ferment in my stomach, causing bloating and gas belching. I had no appetite, and in fact was afraid to eat, as I suffered severe pains afterwards. I was very nervous and restless, and did not sleep at night. My liver was torpid and sluggish, and I had dizzy spells and headaches. I can say for the benefit of those suffering as I did that I have only taken one bottle of Plant Juice, and it has helped me right from the very first dose. I can now eat anything I want to; am not nervous or restless and sleep fine at night. I can truthfully say that Plant Juice has cured me."

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

GEN. ANGELES, MEXICAN WAR LEADER HERE

Miss Isabelle Angeles and (below) Mrs. Felipe Angeles, daughter and wife of General Angeles, famous aide of Villa.

Mrs. Angeles and her daughter, escaped from Mexico at the outbreak of the war. They have since been living in Boston.

General Felipe Angeles, the Mexican leader who has been closely associated with General Villa, after a career in the course of which he served under Diaz, Madero, Huerta and Carranza, arrived in Boston today.

He was met at the station by his wife and daughter, and they went to a Back Bay hotel.

The general's wife and daughter Isabella have been living at No. 119 Newbury street, having come to the United States two years ago to escape the turbulent disorders in Mexico.

Washington dispatches contain a hint that Mrs. Angeles may become the First Lady of Mexico.

General Angeles is expected to visit Washington and a number of other Eastern cities to interview Mexican exiles who are understood to be willing to offer their services and fortunes to assist in the reestablishment of a stable government in Mexico. These men, who include the better elements of the various Mexican factions, may unite upon General Angeles as their leader.

Mrs. Angeles and her daughter speak English perfectly and are enjoying their stay in Boston. They are particularly pleased with the kindness of Bostonians.

General Angeles obtained his training as a soldier under Diaz. He served successfully under Madero, Huerta, Carranza and Villa. To his great knowledge of artillery tactics is ascribed a great measure of Villa's successes in battle. Recent reports are to the effect he has broken with Villa, his trip to Boston being pointed to as giving color to this story.

Auto Smoke Lands Wildes in Court

Llewellyn Wildes, Boston agent of the Savannah line, who lives at No. 18 Wyoming street, Roxbury, was in the South Boston court today accused by Bicycle Officer Fred Bouchere of permitting an excessive amount of smoke to escape from his auto on the Strandway. It was the first case of the kind to come before the local court. Mr. Wildes' case was placed on file, as were those of Alfred Durgin, Edward T. Durgin, Edward T. Shelley and James Mahoney, who were similarly accused.

19 DEAD IN RAID ON MEXICAN TRAIN

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Nineteen persons are reported to have been killed when a band, said to have been Zapatistas, attacked a south-bound train from Vera Cruz on the Vera Cruz & Isthmus Railway on Monday, Consul Canada at Vera Cruz advised the State Department today. He also reported that hostile forces yesterday cut the Mexican Railway and prevented the departure from Vera Cruz of two Carranzista troop trains.

A request that another transport be sent to the Mexican east coast to bring out refugees was forwarded to the department by Vice-Consul Bevan at Tampico.

Bevan reported the arrival at Tampico in destitute circumstances, of the family of George Ogden, consisting of ten adults and ten children. They were compelled to leave their ranch at Guerrero, San Luis Potosi, because of unsettled conditions there.

Consul Simpich at Nogales reported that two Americans arrived there from the Yaqui valley. He gave them transportation to their former homes at Sacramento. These Americans stated that their homes and ranch buildings were burned by the Indians.

Simpich added that Nogales is overrun with destitute refugees for whom there is no work and no help.

Another dispatch from Simpich said that Governor Maytorena assured him on Sunday that he could control the Yaqui valley, having sent a force of 750 men there.

Miss Sheehan of Roxbury a Bride

Miss Alice M. Sheehan, organist at St. Paul's Catholic Church in Roxbury, and Francis J. Ferguson were married at the church today, Bishop Joseph G. Anderson officiating. Breakfast followed at the home of the bride at No. 12 Brookford street, Roxbury. The bride was attended by her sister, Helen J. Sheehan, and the best man was Leo Ryder of South Boston. The Fergusons will live at No. 460 Columbia road, Dorchester.

Schooner Grueby Reports Man Lost

Captain Nickerson of the schooner Frances S. Grueby arrived at the fish pier today, reporting the mysterious drowning of Bernard Conrey, one of the crew, on Monday. Conrey's dory was found, evidently after he had hauled his trawls, but with no indication of how he had lost his life. None of the crew believes he committed suicide. Conrey came from St. Mary's, Newfoundland.

Miss Stuart Weds George J. Green

Miss Nellie Viola Stuart, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Ambrose C. Stuart, and George J. Green were married yesterday at Young's Hotel by the Rev. George K. Heath. Mr. Green is a prominent Boston business man. After July 15, Mr. and Mrs. Green will be at home at No. 83 Russett road, West Roxbury.

Fleeced by Girls, Commits Suicide

NEW YORK, June 23.—Because he had been robbed of $8.26 by two girls Arthur Olson, aged twenty, committed suicide by inhaling gas today. He had been sent out to collect the money for his father and met the girls after being successful in his mission.

URGE CARMEN TO ACCEPT AWARD

The Bay State carmen's arbiter, James H. Vahey, and their attorney, Philip Mansfield, are today making the rounds of the locals of the union counselling the men to accept the award because they are bound by the vote of their delegates agreeing to arbitration, and by the national constitution of the union to abide by the decision of the arbiters.

At Lynn, where Vahey and Mansfield spent a troubled three hours, explaining things to the excited employees, the local gave them to understand that it, at least, would repudiate the decision of the arbitration board.

"TRIMMED," SAY THE MEN.

The Lynn members of the union also declared that the Lynn local would not only repudiate the award, but would send men to the other locals to urge discussion of the desirability of taking a vote to strike.

"We are properly 'trimmed,'" was hurled at Vahey when he told why he assented to the award at the Lynn meeting.

"This local at least," said one of the officials of the Lynn union, "has not abandoned the idea of striking. The only reason that we did not take a strike vote at this meeting is that we wish to make more certain of the sentiment in Essex and Middlesex Counties."

Although telling the men that they had already accepted the award of the arbitration committee when the issues were submitted to arbitration by agreement of the union representatives with the car company representatives, before the members of the committee had been chosen even, Mr. Vahey urged the men never again to submit differences to arbitration.

He declared that he personally would attend the Rochester convention of street car employees in September to present the Bay State case and advocate doing away with arbitration entirely.

YELLS AND CHEERS.

It was this announcement alone, of all the pleas and arguments and explanations offered to the carmen by Mr. Vahey that received applause. The 300 men who packed Sharon Hall, Lynn, broke loose with yells and cheers.

But little less determined was the attitude of other locals where Vahey and Mansfield spoke, urging the men to stand pat on the award until after October, 1916. Everywhere the conviction was expressed that had the men held firm, to the point of striking, the company would have capitulated on far more favorable terms than those decided on by the arbitrators.

Meetings of locals today will also be addressed by Vahey and Mansfield, who are leaving no stone unturned in the effort to induce the men to keep cool and stand by their agreement.

At the meeting at 724 Washington street, of the presidents of the local unions, it was agreed that the men had bound themselves hand and foot to accept the award when it was agreed to arbitrate. The presidents seemed to believe that operating under the terms of the award, at least for a year, is the only course in which the union men will have public opinion with them.

Whitney Fiancee Gets Insurance by Court Decision

Charlotte M. Crosby, the fiancee of Frank P. Whitney, who died in 1912, will receive the life insurance which he desired should go to her.

The Supreme Judicial Court has awarded her $4,617 in her suit against the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company and George P. Whitney, administrator of Frank P. Whitney. The administrator claimed the money.

It appeared that Whitney, shortly before he died, made a false statement to the company in order to secure a loan of $400 by claiming that his fiancee had died in Texas in 1911.

WILLARD TELLS HOW TO KEEP IN SHAPE

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All rights reserved.)

By JESS WILLARD.

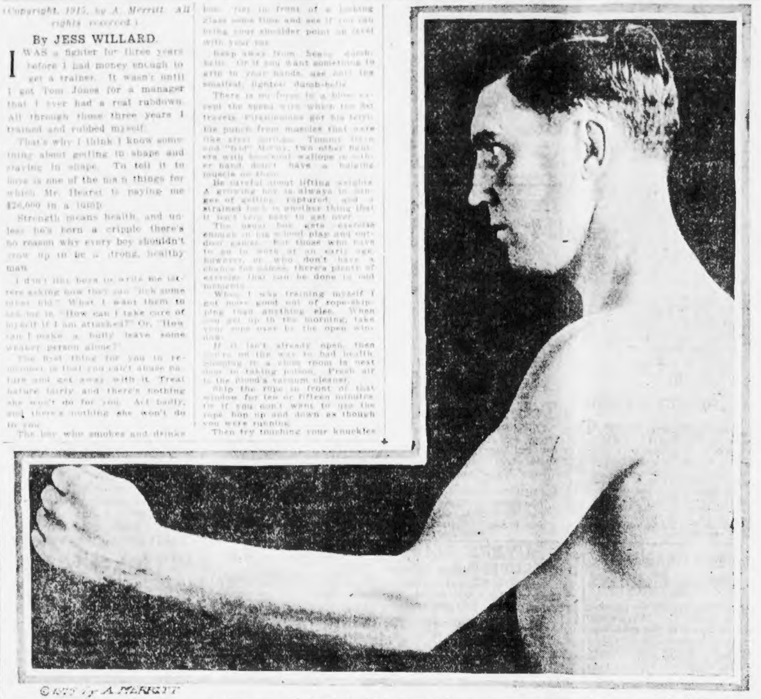
I WAS a fighter for three years before I had money enough to get a trainer. It wasn't until I got Tom Jones for a manager that I ever had a real rubdown. All through those three years I trained and rubbed myself.

That's why I think I know something about getting in shape and staying in shape. To tell it to boys is one of the main things for which Mr. Hearst is paying me $26,000 in a lump.

Strength means health, and unless he's born a cripple there's no reason why every boy shouldn't grow up to be a strong, healthy man.

I don't like boys to write me letters asking how they can "lick some other kid." What I want them to ask me is, "How can I take care of myself if I am attacked?" Or, "How can I make a bully leave some weaker person alone?"

The first thing for you to remember is that you can't abuse nature and get away with it. Treat nature fairly and there's nothing she won't do for you. Act badly, and there's nothing she won't do to you.



©1915 by A. MERRITT

Here is Champion Willard's massive left arm. With this he jabbed and feinted Johnson up to the time he shot his right over for the knockout.

The boy who smokes and drinks might as well give up all hope of ever being an athlete. It can't be done. Nicotine and alcohol are body poisons. They hurt the heart and lungs, knock out the stomach and frazzle the nerves.

If you had a smooth running machine you wouldn't throw sand on the wheels and drop nails in the cogs. That's what the drinker and smoker do to the human machinery.

For boys under eighteen no other training is necessary than a natural, regular life.

Take plenty of exercise.

Breathe deep.

Eat plenty of good food and chew it well.

Go to bed early. The heart doesn't rest except during sleep.

Brush your teeth regularly. Seventy-five per cent. of all sickness comes from bad teeth.

This sounds simple, but the boy who does it will find himself as well and strong as he wants to be. Most boys get their ideas of physical development from prize-fight training. They don't know that if the fighter did a little work each day he wouldn't have to sweat and drudge for weeks before each ring battle.

Another thing, most boys think they must get big, bulging muscles. That's an awful mistake. A muscle ought to be like silk, not like iron.

Remember how old Fitzsimmons used to cover up the side of his head with his shoulder? That made it almost impossible for a blow to reach his jaw.

Fitz could do that because he kept every muscle in his body as soft and smooth as a piece of ribbon. Try in front of a looking glass some time and see if you can bring your shoulder point on level with your ear.

Keep away from heavy dumbbells. Or if you want something to grip in your hands, use only the smallest, lightest dumb-bells.

There is no force in a blow except the speed with which the fist travels. Fitzsimmons got his terrific punch from muscles that were like steel springs. Tommy Ryan and "Kid" McCoy, two other fighters with knockout wallops in either hand, don't have a bulging muscle on them.

Be careful about lifting weights. A growing boy is always in danger of getting ruptured, and a strained back is another thing that it isn't very easy to get over.

The usual boy gets exercise enough in his school play and outdoor games. For those who have to go to work at an early age, however, or who don't have a chance for games, there's plenty of exercise that can be done in odd moments.

When I was training myself I got more good out of rope-skipping than anything else. When you get up in the morning, take your rope over to the open window.

If it isn't already open, then you're on the way to bad health. Sleeping in a close room is next door to taking poison. Fresh air is the blood's vacuum cleaner.

Skip the rope in front of that window for ten or fifteen minutes. Or if you don't want to use the rope, hop up and down as though you were running.

Then try touching your knuckles to the floor without bending your knees. Keep it up for a while.

The morning bath is mighty important. I wouldn't advise anybody to try cold plunges in Winter unless they are in fine shape. It's too great a shock. Best to take the chill off.

Walk to your work if you possibly can. Don't drag your feet. Put a spring in every step. And take deep breaths and hold them as long as you can. I know a man who added four inches to his chest expansion by it.

Wind is what the boxer has to have and what he has to work hardest to get. After each fight there's the temptation to take it easy. So he eats too much, loafs too much, and when he's a very big fool, he drinks too much. So he has to train hard to get his lungs back into shape again.

Boxing, when all is said and done, is the best form of lung development in the world. It's also the best all-around exercise, for there isn't a muscle that it doesn't bring into play. I have sparred with football cracks and tennis champions, and it was funny to see how boxing brought out their weaknesses. They looked hard as iron, and yet they'd begin to puff and blow in the first round.

I advise every father to get his boy a pair of big, soft boxing gloves as a present on his tenth birthday.

A teacher isn't needed at first. It's the exercise that counts most. Also the way a boy learns to keep his temper and to stand a punch in the nose without doing the "cry baby" act.

There are a few simple blows that can be taught them quite easily. For instance, a straight left lead at the head is the first thing a boy ought to learn.

It's the quickest blow for it travels in a straight line. It's the safest blow, for it doesn't leave the hitter open to a return punch.

I practiced a left lead in front of a looking glass for a whole year. The thing to guard against is the temptation to draw back on the blow. Some fighters think a "snap" gives force to the punch.

Not on your life. The body has got to be behind the fist. Have the left foot forward, and when the arm goes out, raise on the right foot, lifting the heel. Let the left shoulder follow out.

A right hand block goes with this left hand lead. As the fist shoots out raise the right hand to the face, palm out.

In one of my first fights I put my hand up before my face with the palm in. The other fighter's fist smashed against the padding of the glove and nearly jammed my hand into my face.

Keep these two movements up until they are second nature. Two boys, giving the lead and using the block, can box for hours without hurt. And each is learning the blow and the block.

In other articles I will talk about hooks and swings and uppercuts. A left jab with a perfect block is lesson enough for a while.

I know fighters who haven't got anything else, and they do fairly well. If Freddy Welsh had to depend on his right to win fights he wouldn't be a champion.

Nor do I know of a better blow for street fighting than the straight left smash. The average rough and tumbler is a swinger. He starts a punch at his heel—as we say in the ring, he telegraphs it.

A straight punch beats a swing every time. And there's nothing that takes the heart out of a bully like a belt in the nose. When attacked back off and wait for the rush. As he comes in, arms swinging like flails, let him have it. What with the blow and the force of the rush, it's almost a sure knockdown.

In any street row never let yourself be taken by surprise. Make sure that the quarrel is being carried on at a safe distance. One day at school two fellows got in a row over marbles. At last one walked over to the other and said, "I don't want no fight. We've always been friends."

When he got close he brought his right up in a straight line to the chin and nearly knocked the boy's head off. It's a good thing to be always on your guard when you are having a row.

The things I've been talking about will bring any average boy to fine physical condition and keep him there. The same thing goes for the average man.

I know lots of men who think they've got something the matter with them, and so they have. They drink and they smoke. They sleep in stuffy rooms with the windows closed. They take warm baths in Winter and cold baths in Summer. They don't walk enough, and they bolt their food.

That's why we have more doctors in America than in the rest of the world put together. When it's so easy to be healthy, and so unhappy to be sick wouldn't you think people would have sense enough to do the right thing?

(Tomorrow Willard will tell how he decided to go East and meet the famous fighters.)

SNOW CHECKS ADVANCE OF ITALIANS

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, June 23.—Heavy snows in the heights where the Italians are advancing against the Austrians are proving a severe handicap to the troops of King Victor Immanuale. This has resulted in almost a complete cessation of operations in the higher mountains.

On the lower levl, according to latest reports from the front, the opposing forces are engaged in a great artillery duel. The Italians have reached the massive steel and concrete defences constructed by the Austrians and it will be necessary to reduce these before the advance is resumed.

In these operations the Italian aviators are proving of the greatest help, sping out the hidden forts of the enemy and directing upon them a rain of shells. The Italian artillery is proving highly efficient, the improved guns secretly perfected in the government plants mastering these of the Austrians.

TROOPS FROM GALICIA.

The Austrians have brought troops from the Galician front, according to the latest official statement from the War Office, which tells of the defeat of one of these organizations at Monte Nero.

On the lower Isonze the Italians have strengthened their positions and have repulsed attacks on their Plava positions.

The official statement follows:

"Throughout yesterday the enemy confined his activity to long distance artillery duels along the whole front.

"At Monte Nero our troops attacked and repulsed for the first time a battalion of Austrian Alpine troops just arrived from the Galician front.

"Night attacks with intense artillery fire and also with hand grenades against our Plava positions were repulsed.

STRENGTHEN POSITIONS.

"On the lower Isonzo we have strengthened our positions.

"The flood caused by the enemy along the Monfalcone Canal, though decreasing, is still an important obstacle to operations.

"Aeroplanes of the enemy threw bombs within our lines, but did no damage."

It is reported that an Italian fleet has sailed from Taranto for Tenedos to join the Anglo-French squadron in the operations against the Dardanelles.

Following strong protests by the American consul at Trieste, the military have stopped the riffraff of the town, who, let loose lately, were plundering foreign property.

The graduation address will be delivered by Professor Marshall L. Perrin of Boston University on "Personality as an Asset in Life."

Police Investigate Two Malden Fires

The State police are investigating today two fires which ocurred in the Faulkner district of Malden.

It is in this district that insurance companies recently made a wholesale cancellation of insurance policies following a series of suspicious fires.

The fires, were, in the dwelling of Isaac Sandry at No. 50 Boylston street and second, at No. 92 Harvard street.

Claims Pope Has a Teuton Agreement

PARIS, June 23.—Commenting on his papal interview, which has greatly chagrined French Catholics, Gustave Herve says the Pope has reached an understanding with Austria, Bavaria and Prussia, whereby, if France and Italy are beaten, his temporal power in Rome shall be restored.

This, says Herve, is the irresistible conclusion from the Pope's statement.

LODGE IS ORATOR AT RADCLIFFE'S COMMENCEMENT

Leading figures in Radcliffe's commencement day—Right to left, Miss Marjorie Bridgman, president of the class, and Miss Rachel Lewis, chief marshal.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge delivered the commencement address at Radcliffe today, when the senior class of something more than a hundred girls received degrees.

The exercises were held in Sanders Theatre. The graduating class met in the yard, ranks were formed, and the march to the theatre began. Rachel Lewis of Walpole was chief marshal, and Marjorie Bridgman of Salem, president of the class, assisted her. President LeBaron R. Briggs distributed the degrees to the girls.

Senator Lodge's address was a plea against the tendency to relegate Greek and Latin to too remote a place in the curriculum. He quoted the story of Aladdin and the lamp, as a lesson against too hastily throwing away things that appear useless.

"No one can be called a cultivated man," he said, "who does not know, in addition to his own literature, Homer, Cervantes, and 'The Arabian Night', and comparatively few persons fulfil this condition."

Holland Ready to Plunge Into War

NEW YORK, June 23.—The people of Holland are about to plunge the little kingdom into the European conflict, said M. Fronkes, an American artist who returned from Europe today on the Holland-American liner Noordam.

"War spirit among the Dutch has been rising steadily since the Germans first intimated that Belgium was to be annexed," he said. "The people fear that Holland will be next and the Dutch army has been steadily recruited and equipped until now Queen Wilhelmina can put 500,000 well-armed men into the field at short notice. This might come at any time."

Champ Clark to Have Films Made as Daughter Weds

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., June 23.—Speaker Champ Clark has under consideration a plan by which he will perpetuate the wedding of his daughter, Genevieve, for future generations to see. He is planning to have motion pictures of the wedding taken. He will purchase the film and lay it away in his library, and whenever he wants to see the Thompson-Clark wedding over again he will merely sort out the film and run it off on a screen in his home.

Speaker Clark has "set his foot down," as his daughter expressed it, on having any moving picture taken for exhibition purposes.

Snow Halts Campaign.

BRESCIA, Italy, June 23.—A heavy snowstorm has brought the temperature below zero on Monte Altissimo, halting military operations.

Steel Coaches Save New Haven Travelers

STAMFORD, Ct., June 23.—Steel coaches on the Stamford local train from New York, on the New Haven Railroad, prevented a serious disaster near Cos Cob, Ct., early today, when the passenger train crashed into a string of freight cars. Only the engineer of the local, George Smith of Portchester, was injured, though all of the thirty passengers were shaken up.

All the windows of the passenger coaches were smashed, but the cars remained on the rails. Being of steel they withstood the tremendous shock.

Prince Joachim Now Aviator in Flanders

AMSTERDAM, June 23.—A Berlin message states that the Kaiser's youngest son, Prince Joachim, has completed his course of training as an army aviator and has joined the aviator corps in Flanders.

Young Roxbury 'Indian Killers' Go on Warpath

Two young "Indian killers," bound for Arizona with a toy pistol and thirty-nine cents, asked a Dedham policeman to direct them to the great Western plains by the shortest route. They had tramped for hours without finding traces of the red men and were anxious to reach the hunting ground.

At the station an officer telephoned to Mr. and Mrs. William Hobbes of No. 17 Burrell street, Roxbury, and told them that their son, Clarence, nine, was waiting to be taken home. Then he called Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rose of No. 15 Burrell street, Roxbury, and told them where to find their son Joseph, nine.

FLOUR 20 CENTS BARREL LOWER

Flour is still falling, having dropped 20 cents a barrel in the wholesale market this week. Prices of flour were today from [illegible] to [illegible] per barrel, [illegible] since the extreme high point of the late spring.

The retailers, who bought heavily of flour at the high point in expectation of "ten-dollar wheat and twelve-dollar flour," are working off their surplus stocks and the retail price is nearer the wholesale rate than it was a week ago.

California fruits are coming into the market in quantities and of great variety. Plums, apricots, peaches, cherries and other early fruits are being offered at very reasonable prices. Cherries are especially plentiful and sell for 15 to 20 cents a pound. Native cherries are coming in slowly owing to the late season.

Cantaloupes are plentiful for the season and are selling as low as [illegible] cents each. Strawberries are also coming in great quantities and today splendid native berries are selling for 10 cents a box and fancy berries for 15.

The first swordfish of the season came into the Boston market this week. About [illegible] pounds arrived Monday and others have come in since. The retail price is 25 and 30 cents a pound.

British Withstand Fire of 450 Shells in the Dardanelles

LONDON, June 23.—Telling how [illegible] Turks were slain in battle by the British, the War Office says: "[illegible] and 4 o'clock in the evening of June [illegible] the Turks expended some 450 high explosive shells on our left and centre trenches and were seen massing for an attack. The enemy's heart failed them and the attack degenerated into a fire action. At [illegible] o'clock the Turks, in counter-attacking, effected a lodgment in their lines at an awkward salient, captured by us on the 4th. As the brigade was unable to recover the lost trench, the Fifth Royal Scots, assisted by a company of the Worcester Regiment, came to their help. This attack was brilliantly carried out to a successful issue."

ITCHING PIMPLES ON FACE AND ARMS

Would Turn Into Blotches. Caused Disfigurement. Had to Keep Arms Wrapped Up. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In 2 Months Well.

44 Wight Place, Springfield, Mass.—"My baby had pimples on his face and arms and they would turn into blotches. They caused disfigurement while they lasted and they itched, for he would scratch till he would bleed. When he scratched, wherever he put his hands afterwards on his face or arms, other pimples would appear. Nights he woke up crying and I had to stay awake with him to warm water and bathe him. I had to keep his arms wrapped up most of the time on account of his clothes.

"I used a number of salves and other remedies, but none did any good. Then I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and thought I would try them. In one week I could see his skin beginning to clear up and in two months it was all well." (Signed) Mrs. J. Petelle, October 16, 1914.

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

"THERE'S no harm in Freddie," he said presently. "But it's pretty certain that he will bring away something that doesn't belong to him."

"Oh!" exclaimed Celestia. "How unjust. Has Freddie taken anything that wasn't his since I've lived in this house?"

"That he hasn't!" said Mrs. Douglas. "And it's all your doing."

"Freddie is a good boy," said Celestia; "and he is going to be a good man."

"He's got so," said the honest Nelson, "that he don't light a cigarette till he gets around the corner."

"This cloak," said Celestia, "(isn't it lovely?) isn't mine. It was loaned to me by a very beautiful lady. And so was everything else I've got on."

With heightened color, she threw the cloak back from her shoulders, and showed above an exquisitely simple gown of mauve tulle, her dazzling arms and neck.

"It's mufti," cried Celestia, and she did not look so much like a reforming angel as a delighted child.

"Mufti?"

"Perhaps I don't mean mufti. It's a disguise. Nobody is to know who I am. And so I have to look just the way the other people do. And I'm to look, learn and listen."

* * * * *

At the expression on the old people's faces she broke off short and then went on in a compassionate voice.

"Oh, my dears, you look as if you were shocked, as if you were afraid for me. But there's nothing wrong. Nobody will hurt me. And besides I'm tired of preaching and preaching and preaching. And I think it will be such fun!"

Just then Freddie came in, resplendent in full evening dress. He had slicked his hair straight back and flat to his head and he had borrowed a gold (at least it was yellow and shining) watch chain to go across his waistcoat.

Perceiving the state of wonderment into which his respectable parents were thrown by the wonder of his attire, Freddie hummed the opening bars of a delightful maxixe and gave an inimitably grave and graceful exhibition of the steps that went with them.

A born dancer was the Ferret and like many another unbalanced person he had an exquisite ear for music.

"Celestia," he said, "says she's just goin' to look on. But I'm goin' to dance. These up-to-date dances were danced on the Bowery more'n a hundred years ago. And there's nobody can do 'em better than me."

If Celestia really thought she wouldn't be recognized she made a great mistake. It would have taken more than a conventional ball gown to disguise the compelling glory of her eyes, and although she did not dance, she was from the moment of her entry the centre about which everything revolved, or better, she was the centre about which all the men revolved. Freddie the Ferret was a little centre unto himself.

Celestia Fixes Freddie's Tie

It was whispered about that Celestia had brought with her a genuine Bowery tough, a reformed gunman, and society, always keen for new sensations, proceeded to satisfy its curiosity.

But not altogether at the Ferret's expense. A dance hall had always caused his mind to work more consecutively and with more coherence than any other surroundings. Presented to his hostess, Freddie was neither perturbed by her importance nor her diamonds.

"Want to whirl?" he suggested with an engaging smile, and—as Mrs. MacAdam afterward told a friend: "I was so flabbergasted by his cheek that I 'smiled a kind of sickly smile' and went as I supposed to the slaughter. He made me dance better than I ever danced before. At first I kept wondering if my diamonds were safe (of course I keep the originals in safe deposits; haven't seen them for eight years) and if he had a gun in his hip pocket.

"Then I began to wonder why it was that I had never before really understood what it means to keep time. Why, it's thrilling! But of course you know. You always keep such beautiful time. And he made me dance all sorts of new steps. And, my dear, he flattered me so, and"——

Here Mrs. MacAdam blushed and laughed at the same time. "Once I bungled something frightfully and nearly went down, and what do you think he said? 'You're all right, kid! Cling to popper!' Kid! What do you think of that, at my time of life? I couldn't get angry. I tried a little, but it was no use, I liked it. And when we'd finished, I was struggling to think of something to say, and what do you think I did say?" Here Mrs. MacAdam once more blushed and laughed. "I said, 'The night's young. I hope you'll ask me to spiel again.' He said, 'You're on.' And sure enough he hunted me out for the very next fox trot.

"But by that time all the real kids wanted to dance with him, and we old fogies had to stand aside. Can't you see the modern debutante? For years she's been dressing and painting herself up more and more, and at last she gets a chance to dance with a real gunman. No, he's never really shot anybody or worn stripes. I wish you could have been there!! Some of the men got him in the smoking room and since then everybody talks his language. Mrs. Selden admits that she tried to make him fall in love with her; but she failed.

A Fictionless Fable

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a woman who woke on a Spring morning and found she had no desire ever again to rise. The sunlight streamed in at her window and the nesting birds twittered outside in the vines that clambered up the side of her house. A pear tree in bridal white waved and curtsied against a lake blue sky. But the world was all ash gray to the woman who lay in the great four-poster bed, and she herself a cinder in the murk.

So she sent for her best friend and for her fiance to see if either of them could cheer her. And the best friend wore a hat of maline under which her eyes gleamed like sapphires and the lover was aglow from his brisk walk across the park. So the color of those blue eyes caught him while the ash gray soul of the woman he had loved made her face a blur of paleness against her white pillows.

So the fiance went out to engage a clever trained nurse of whom he knew and the best friend went with him to ask the doctor to come right over. And the woman left behind looked at the telephone and smiled a sad and cynical smile.

Presently a radiant young being blocked her doorway. "I am the Doctor's son," said he. "He's out of town so I ventured over to see if you would trust such a Very Young Doctor."

And the Woman felt she could trust the Very Young Doctor.

At the end of a week, the sky was blue again and the pear tree bridal white and the birds sang loud enough for the Woman's heart to hear. Then one morning said the Very Young Doctor, "I've my car outside. What you need is sunshine and fresh air and—and some one to protect you from the cold winds."

The Woman looked at him for a moment and then she turned her face to the wall. "Go alone, boy," said she. "I've a contagious disease—it is world-weariness. Run along now. You can't help me a bit. I need a much older, wiser doctor."

And the Very Young Doctor did not know that the Woman who was world-weary had saved him from a VERY BAD SPELL OF SICKNESS.

Her Hat

"They say he loves her so much he can even anticipate her thoughts."

"Yes, indeed. When we were coming out this evening he said, 'Yes, dear; it is on straight,' before she had said a word."

Simple Solution Dissolves Hair from Face and Arms

Valeska Suratt, the famous beauty actress and authority on health and beauty, says: "Hair on the face, neck and arms is the most annoying and unpleasant blemish women have to put up with. It is useless to waste time and money with the powders and pastes which only burn the hairs at the roots, leaving the skin sore and rough.

"If you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes, get a one-ounce bottle of simple sulfo solution from your druggist, apply with the tips of the fingers to the hairy parts, keeping them moist until the hairs are actually dissolved. This simple solution destroys the hairs entirely, leaving the skin soft, smooth and white. It is claimed the hairs very rarely return after the first application, but never after the second."—Advertisement.

Their Married Life

Warren Objects Strenuously to Having a Seamstress in the House

Copyright, 1915, International News Service.

"WHAT are you getting up so early for?" growled Warren, glaring at Helen.

Helen turned startled at his sudden words. She had thought she had been too careful to awaken him, and she said apologetically:

"I'm sorry I awoke you, dear."

"I've been awake for some time."

"Oh, have you?" I'm going to have a woman come in to sew today, and I thought I'd get up early to be ready for her."

Helen genuinely hated the idea of a sewing woman in the house, but this seamstress had come highly recommended and as Winifred needed underclothes and several little summer dresses Helen thought it would be cheaper to have a woman sew at home where she could superintend things, rather than send the things out.

Breakfast went as usual, Warren engrossed in the morning paper and Helen going through her mail. There was seldom anything for Warren came to the house, so Helen had everything her own way in the morning and frequently answered all manner of questions concerning her correspondence. Not that Warren was jealous, but he was often curious and ready to jibe if Helen used any of the little airs and graces that he readily recognized.

"Here's a catalogue from Simonson's," she remarked. "All the clothes look American made. I don't know what we're going to do without Paris."

Warren gave her a withering glance. "With people as poor as we are," he remarked, "Paris will cut very little ice just at present."

Helen sighed. It seemed years since she had revelled in a real imported gown, and once in a while she longed to be extravagant and buy something really handsome.

If Warren heard the sigh he did not show the fact, but went on with his paper. Helen continued to look over the catalogue and finally exclaimed:

"Here's a really pretty gown; it looks quite Parisian."

"Still harping on the question of clothes? Haven't you got enough? It seems to me as though you were pretty well stocked if I know anything about it."

"Why, of course, I don't want anything, at least not anything in particular," denied Helen. "Every woman likes to look at them, though I don't think there is any harm in it."

Her eyes were flashing angrily and she was on the point of indignant tears, but controlled herself. The bell rang at that moment, and from Nora's low conversation Helen knew that the sewing woman had been admitted.

The seamstress was standing in the hall pinning her cheap black hat to her coat and hanging both on the hat rack.

"Good morning," said Helen sweetly. "Will you come in here? I think everything is ready for you. Here are the little muslins, and here is the organdie. I want the dresses all made the same from this pattern. You see the style is plain and the smocking is the only work that will take time."

Helen hurried out to the dining room again to see Warren off. He was just finishing his coffee and proceeded to fold his napkin in silence as Helen dropped into her chair.

"Will she be here to dinner tonight?" he asked disagreeably.

Helen looked up. "Don't speak so loud, Warren," she said; "I shouldn't like her to hear you."

"I don't care," he vouchsafed; "besides you closed the door and, unless she has pretty good ears, she's not going to hear a remark made in an ordinary tone of voice two rooms away."

Helen gathered up her mail and said sweetly, "I'm afraid she is, dear, but perhaps not. She has two little children and she may want to go home to them."

"Where did you hear of her?" he questioned.

"Several members of the club have spoken of her. She does plain sewing and is very reasonable."

"I don't see why you can't have your sewing done out of the house like other women," he said, still disagreeable.

"Well, I'll tell you why I don't," said Helen firmly. "You have talked expenses of late till I am tired, and I am trying to make bills as small as possible, unless you don't want me to have anything. This woman would charge about half of what a woman would who took the sewing home. I am going to help her, and there is no reason for you taking that attitude about it, Warren; I think you are very unreasonable."

Warren got up abruptly. "I hate women tagging around the house," he complained. "We haven't been alone for two meals in succession since I can remember."

"I'm sorry, Warren, but in this case it can't be helped. I am trying to do my best for you and everyone."

She followed him out into the hall and went up to him impulsively. "It will be over in a couple of days, dear; won't you be nice about it?"

"Yes, and then we'll have to begin to talk about some place to send you for the Summer."

Helen was silent.

"Well, be good," he said with a hasty kiss, "and I'll be as decent as possible." This was one of Warren's ways of being really magnanimous, and Helen heard the door close with a sigh of relief.

Another installment of this interesting story will appear here soon.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

A certain preacher in the north of England has earned the nickname of "Old Neverend," owing to the length of his sermons.

One night he was preaching in a chapel some distance from his home, and surprised the congregation by winding up his discourse in half an hour.

"There is much more I could say on the subject," he continued, "but I have no lamps on my trap, and the horse I am driving is so old and slow that I shall be very late in getting home as it is."

As he was leaving the chapel an old man came to him and congratulated him on the sermon.

"Aw nivir heerd thee preach so well afore," he said. "Stick to thy lampless trap and thy old nag, and thy preaching will be all the better for it."

A commercial traveler, putting up for the night at his hotel in a small town, ordered breakfast for an early hour next morning. The landlady, preparing the meal, not wishing her guest to be late, sent a servant girl up stairs to see if the gentleman was up.

Peering through the keyhole, the servant, a raw country girl, espied the traveler at the dressing table using his tooth brush. Coming down stairs, she surprised her mistress by reporting:

"It's all right, mum, he'll be down directly. He's sharpening his teeth!"

"Oh, Jack, I expect I shall be awfully stupid now," said the young wife, when she returned from the dentist's.

"How's that?" asked her husband in surprise.

"I've just had my wisdom teeth pulled," she mourned.

"Oh, dear one, the idea that wisdom teeth have anything to do with wisdom is quite absurd," hubby reassured her. "If you had every tooth in your head pulled, it couldn't make you a bit stupider than you are now, you know."

* * *

The small girl walked thoughtfully into the house from the vegetable garden.

"Mother," said she, "have green gooseberries legs?"

Mother laughed.

"Of course they haven't, darling. What made you think so?"

The child looked more solemn than ever as she replied:

"Well, then, I've been eating caterpillars!"

* * *

It was at a village concert, where some pretty girls were acting as attendants, showing people to their places.

One specially charming damsel approached an old gentleman.

"Shall I show you to a seat?" she murmured, with a bashful blush.

The old man stared at her, and the girl repeated her question, feeling most abashed.

"Can I show you to a seat?" she said, in louder tones.

"Eh, what—what?" exclaimed the old man, who was very deaf.

That finished the poor girl.

"Shall I sew you to a sheet?" she screamed wildly.

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.

THE bulgy eyes of the little man seemed to penetrate Brooke, and perhaps for the first time in his life Godfrey Brooke winced at the direct gaze of a pair of eyes. "Mr. Coleman—that is the gentleman's name, is it not?—has given me the bare facts, but, of course, there must be a great deal more to learn.

"Now, I want you, Sir Godfrey, to be perfectly frank with me and place me in possession of every fact, no matter how seemingly trivial and unimportant, which appears to you to have any bearing on her ladyship's absence. Do you follow me?"

"Yes, yes!" answered Brooke quickly, "but the worst of it is, there are no facts to give you—there is nothing to go on, absolutely nothing."

"It may appear so at the outset," said the little man calmly, "but let us go carefully over the matter. Now, perhaps it will be better for me to put a few questions to you. What do you say?"

"Certainly!" replied Brooke. "There is nothing you can ask me I shall not be perfectly willing to answer."

The little man sighed and stroked the side of his nose with his forefinger. "In the first place, Sir Godfrey," he said, "were you and her ladyship on good terms?"

"Good heavens, man, of course we were—the very best of terms!"

"Quite sure—that is, have you ever had any disagreement or"—

"Never a word!" asserted Brooke, with profound conviction. "We understand each other perfectly."

"Forgive me, Sir Godfrey," insisted the detective, "if I appear to be impertinent; but do you think it possible for there to have been a man in the matter?"

Brooke sprang to his feet, his blue eye blazed.

"Confound you, sir!" he thundered. "What the deuce are you driving at? My wife never thought of another man!"

Mr. Paton nodded.

"Quite so; but it does not follow that another man did not think of—of your wife!"

"Pshaw! That is not worth discussing. So far, at any rate, so far as I know—no other man did."

"Good. You have been married about two years, I understand?"

"Yes; but what the dickens has that got to do with it?"

Mr. Paton smiled apologetically.

"Forgive me, Sir Godfrey," he said, "but it is essential if I am to be of any use to you—and that is what I want to be—for me to know everything there is to be known. You see, you have only lived with her for a very short time."

"That is so. We were married just before I went away." And in a few words Brooke told the little man the history of his wooing, marriage, his travels and his return.

Mr. Paton nodded. He made no notes, but he looked like a man who was mentally registering every word on his brain.

The detective put a few more questions to Sir Godfrey, and then reassured him that everything that possibly could be done would be done.

"And without publicity?"

"Certainly, at first," answered Mr. Paton. "But later on, that is to say, if we are unable to satisfactorily solve the mystery today, and I have every hope of being able to do so, I think we ought to inform the press. They are very useful in a case of this sort. You must leave that to our discretion, Sir Godfrey, and rest assured that nothing shall be done without first consulting you. From what you have told me, I can only conclude that her ladyship has met with an accident and is unable to communicate with you."

Brooke raised his hand as if to ward off a blow.

"Don't—for Heaven's sake—don't talk of accidents!"

"For what it is worth, Sir Godfrey," said Mr. Paton, "I can assure you of one thing, and that is that, whatever unfortunate circumstance can have befallen her ladyship, it is not a fatal accident, or even a serious one. So much I have already ascertained from our hospital returns.

"Now, if you don't mind, I should like to have a few words with her ladyship's maid—Berenger, I think you said her name was—and your valet, Collier."

"Certainly," answered Brooke, going over to the bell. Paton stopped him with another question.

"By the way," he said, "do you mind letting me know exactly what you did yesterday, Sir Godfrey?"

Wilhelm II. Officer Loses Son in War

MORE CALL FOR BETTER STREETS

Max Mitchell, president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, and Lew C. Hill, president of the John L. Whiting-J. J. Adams Company of Boston, urge immediate street improvements for Boston. Their statements follow.

By LEW C. HILL.

The Boston AMERICAN is doing a very commendable work in trying to have the city's streets, particularly in the business section, improved at once. Everyone knows how bad these streets are.

Comment by customers who [illegible] us from other cities, here and abroad, always make a point of our deplorable streets, and which is humiliating to our city. They always express surprise that a city of Boston's reputation and importance should permit such thoroughfares to exist as they are.

We expect temporary inconveniences, but the public does not want and will not consent to the generally bad condition of our streets. There ought to be and should be immediate action looking toward improvement of the streets of Boston.

By MAX MITCHELL.

President of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company.

Aside from the business point of view in the crowded business sections where proper facilities for transportation quicken the method of business, there are the streets where the poor live and for whom the street is a park.

We are just beginning the Summer when the crowded streets are filled with children during the day and night, and while it is essential to have a street in good condition to facilitate business, it is as essential if not much more so, to have the proper kind of streets where the future citizens are reared, and same should be well maintained.

Those who have passed through the streets on a hot Summer night, and traffic going on at the same time raising dust, will appreciate the value of a clean street, that would expedite the teamster on his business, thus not only saving the lives and health of our children, but prevent accidents which might arise from bad streets.

Our streets are not in good condition and anyone who has had any experience in streets in getting them in proper order will realize the hard task it is, not speaking of the bad impression of the many visitors who come to Boston during the Summer months.

Of course, we ought to have better streets and clean streets. I should think that Boston citizens should insist on better streets.

Action on this matter should be immediate.

Admits U. S. Right to Sell Ammunition

By International News Service.

LONDON, June 23.—The Exchange Telegraph's Copenhagen correspondent, in a dispatch received today, quotes the German newspaper Neu Korrespondenz as admitting that the United States has the right to sell ammunition to the allies. This is the first admission of the kind that has come from any German source.

The paper declares, however, that Germany is justified in its anger because America wishes a change in its submarine policy, but adds that it is hoped that no conflict with the United States will result.

LIONEL de Jersey Harvard, who will sail for his home in England Saturday to fight for the Allies.

Lionel de Jersey Harvard, who will be awarded his degree at Harvard tomorrow, will sail for his home in England Saturday. He has arranged for this quick return to his native land in order that he can present himself for enlistment in the British army.

He will sail from New York on the steamship New York of the American line.

Harvard specialized in English at Harvard. His election as class poet first brought him prominence last Winter and a short while afterwards his hymn was chosen as the official baccalaureate anthem.

"My plans for a life work are still unsettled," declared Harvard today. "When I reach England I will present myself for service in the British army and hope to be soon off to the front.

"Frankly, I don't approve of war. My motto is that of Goldwin Smith, 'Above all nations is humanity.'

"But some wars are forced upon peoples who do not voluntarily seek them. Such a war I believe is this one. Naturally I think the cause of the allies both righteous and just and I intend to fight because I am firm in my belief that this is so."

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR OUTING

Everything is in readiness for the AMERICAN'S third annual outing to Nantasket Beach on next Wednesday, June 30, for Boston's mothers and children.

General Manager [illegible] of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, whose fleet of splendid steamers has been specially chartered for this outing, says that his company is all ready and waiting for their part in the joyous occasion and that the only thing to think about now is "the weather man." Let's all hope he will be kind to Boston's mothers and children and furnish a glorious sunshiny day for their annual day at the ocean.

It is safe to predict that one of the most popular "treats" for the youngsters will be the exhibition of animals in Paragon Park and the spectacular performance of Mr. Albee's trained polar bears.

Manager Dodge of Paragon Park has had to scour the country for his animal collection. The war in Europe has stopped the usual shipments of animals from Europe, Asia and Africa, and Manager Dodge had some job on his hands to secure the really splendid collection now being exhibited in Paragon Park, and which includes dozens of varieties of Japanese Rhesus and Ringtail Monkeys, Siberian Bloodhounds, Black Timber Wolves, Baboons and a host of others equally interesting.

A special performance of Mr. Albees' trained polar bears will be given on next Wednesday prior to the grand climax of "Eight Polar Bears Chuting the Chutes." The entire animal program will certainly make the hit of the day with the "kiddies."

The familiar Moxie wagons will again be on hand this year to satisfy the thirsts with this cooling, delicious beverage and do it free of charge, too, through the courtesy of Vice-President Archer of the Moxie Company.

The Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association has donated a large supply of fans for the use of the AMERICAN'S guests.

So, all in all, it's going to be a red-letter day, and the thing to do, as soon as possible, is to exchange your Sunday AMERICAN coupons for the boat trip tickets now in the hands of the AMERICAN branch distributing stations.

A Satisfactory Housewares Store For You

—Tremont Street shoppers will find the New Shepard Housewares Store considerably different from many others. In the first place, it is a complete store, featuring and demonstrating the new inventions and conveniences.

—Then, again, the arrangements and the service will appeal to those who appreciate such things. Not in a basement, but in the sunlight of an upper floor. Good air, freedom from jostling crowds in narrow aisles—these are certainly worth while.

—Thursday morning, June 24, at 8:30, we shall hold a sale to acquaint you with the newest addition to our stores—

And During This Summer Sale of

THE ONLY WAY

PUTTING a lump of coal into a jewel case never made it a diamond, neither will an inferior beer be made good by putting it into a colored bottle or treating it by special mechanical devices after it is made.

The color of a bottle or the kind of a recorder used on a pasteurizer have no more to do with making good beer than a jewel case has to do with making a diamond.

Beer, like bread, is good or bad, according to the materials and skill used in its making, and should be selected with the same care exercised in the purchase of other food.

FENWAY ALE is the product of CHOICE MALT, the hardiest of cereals, selected SAAZER KREIS BOHEMIAN HOPS and the World's Purest Water from Our Own Wells.

Aged in cellars that for generations have been celebrated for the rare quality of their stock ales.

Brewed for those who drink ale for its sound nourishing body as well as for its pleasing flavor.

The Beer Without a Substitute

FENWAY LAGER, like the ale, gets its body from pure CHOICE MALT and its tonic qualities from the HOPS FROM SAAZER KREIS, BOHEMIA, brewed without rice, corn, glucose or substitutes of any kind. No other beer brewed in Boston or coming from the West approaches Fenway in the fundamentals of pure beer.

This wonderful ale and lager can be bought at leading bars and BOTTLE STORES.

When you want the world's best beer, don't bother about the color of the bottle. Just say

JACK BRITTON BEATS GLOVER

ATLAS A. A. RESULTS.

Jack Britton, Chicago, defeated ...ike Glover, South Boston, twelve ...unds.

"Belgium" Brown, Gloucester, de...eated "Young" Jasper, North End, ...ight rounds.

Johnny Noonan, Dorchester, knock...ut, Frankie Hanlon, South Boston, ...wo rounds.

Jack Mansfield defeated Johnny Em...ry, Cambridge, six rounds.

By JACK CONWAY.

THEY do not make them any better than Jack Britton and Mike ...lover. This opinion is today held ...y the 4,000 "fans" who witnessed ...he twelve round bout between these ...wo ring wizards at the Atlas A. A. ...ast night. The tussle had been ad...ertised as a regular big league bat...le and it came up to expectations. Britton was awarded the decision ...y Referee Patsy Haley. He had a ...light shade on his opponent, but ...he advantage in his favor was not ...ery great. We do not believe Britt...on will go around boasting about ...ow he disposed of Glover. He was ...orced to fight at top speed at all ...imes in order to finish in front.

The contest was a brilliant affair. ...t was crowded with fast, dazzling ...oxing, while there was enough hard ...unching scattered throughout the ...welve frames to keep the spectators ...nterested at all times.

It was the most scientific bout ...hich has been held at the Atlas ...lub this year. There was more ...ction in the whirl between Gallant ...nd Robideau, but last night's en...ounter had something on all former ...tlas shows this year when viewed ...rom the angle of clever boxing.

BRITTON performed at his best. Danny Morgan's protege called ...nto play everything which he knows ...bout the manly art. He was on the ...ob at all times and managed to gain ... slight advantage over his shifty ...ival.

Glover did his best work at infight...ng. He outclassed Britton at this ...tyle of milling and might have won ...he decision if he had forced the ...oing more than he did and kept in ...lose where he would have been able ...o have scored with effective punches ...o Britton's body. Jack starred at ...ong range where he landed with ...illing left jabs and right hand ...mashes. He also forced the fight...ng in most of the rounds and did ...ome swell work when he had his ...pponent backed up against the ...opes.

Stallings Blames Poor Stick Work for Braves' Slump

Here's a one-minute interview with Manager Stallings of the Braves:

"How are you, George?"

"Pretty well, what's left of me. We're not hitting."

"What's the matter with the Braves?"

"We're not hitting."

"Pitchers going bad?"

"No, we have been getting good pitching. We're not hitting."

"Are the players fighting for everything in sight they way they did last Fall?"

"Yes, they're fighting hard all the time. We're not hitting."

"Did you run up against good pitching on the road?"

"Once or twice. Doak pitched a swell game against us, but Sallee and Robinson just lobbed 'em over. It didn't make and difference; we're not hitting."

"When will Evers be ready to play?"

"About the first of the month. We're not hitting."

"When will Davis join the team?"

"I don't know; he is due on June 22. But we're not hitting."

Lanning Elected Wesleyan Captain

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., June 23.—Lester A. Lanning of Harvard, Ill., has been elected captain of the Wesleyan University baseball team. He has pitched for the last two seasons.

Hugh Bradley Released.

PITTSBURGH, June 23.—President E. W. Gwyner of the Pittsburgh Federals announced that he had released unconditionally Edward Holly and Hugh Bradley, infielders. Gwyner said Holly and Bradley, former players in the major leagues, had been released because they refused to go to the Colonial League.

Fresh Favors for Fans

By H. W. LANIGAN

The Braves' home-coming was eminently satisfactory. Had it proven a flivver, following those four successive annihilations in St. Louis not to mention the rest of the wretched Western stuff, followers of the local N. L. entry would be in the dumps. As it is nobody is especially worried, as the Braves still have 101 more frolics to play and only stand six games out of first place.

* * *

Dick Rudolph pitched one of the headiest and trickiest games of his career against the Dodgers yesterday. He was constantly catching the Brooklyn batters off their stride, slipping over strikes when they weren't looking. But in our humble opinion Rudolph made a balk in the seventh canto, when he attempted to slip through a strike on Wheat. However, Mr. Byron said nay to Brooklyn's claim. 'Twas 90 per cent. balk, surely, and if it had been allowed Brooklyn would have been better off. As it was Byron's verdict, which clearly favored Boston, almost ruined the matinee. Dick had a hard time holding his position with the ball wavering at his chest-line, when Byron vetoed the balk claim, and evidently had nothing on the ball when he finally dished it up. Wheat connected and his sharp double paved the way for the Dodgers' two tallies, Stengel driving both runners home a few seconds later on a lucky bingle past Schmidt. This was about the first time this summer Byron favored the Braves and truth it is that his kindness almost proved fatal.

Drat it! The usually steady George Foster had to go wrong at precisely the time he was needed. Nine times out of ten four runs are plenty for "Little Nemo." But yesterday he went down for the count in the fifth chapter and truth it is that he was both wild and ineffective while on the job. It is now up to the Hose to thrash the Nationals two in a row if they want to win this series. Inasmuch as Hon. Walter Johnson is down to go against the Carrigans today—all W. J. did in his last out was to kalsomine Cobb, Crawford & Co.—The Sox have got to step some in order to sidestep another black mark, and be in position where they can capture the rubber game.

* * *

The Tigers almost scampered into second place. After spotting the Browns to seven runs in the first three innings, they spurted and tied it up in the eighth. The deadlock lasted until the Rickeyites' half of the fifteenth when Coveleskie, who entered the fray in the ninth and who was going superbly, allowed six hits and they netted four runs, putting the matinee on the beautiful blink. Twenty-eight warriors, seven of them pitchers, got into the game.

Ty Cobb was caught napping off first in the midst of one of the Tigers' rallies. The Peach's slumber really cost his side the game. His offensive play consisted of two hits, one run and a walk.

* * *

The elongated Carl Weilman gets credited with St. Louis victory, as he was on deck in the windup. 'Twas his second triumph inside of forty-eight hours over the merry Michiganders, so the Red Sox have Weilman to thank for remaining in second position.

* * *

The Indians ought to be ashamed of themselves for failing to knock the White Sox off their winning streak. Though the clan of Rowland piled up five errors it was victorious and handily, too. Red Faber got his eleventh victory of the year. His defeats total two—Boston and Detroit being the only clubs to flop him this campaign.

* * *

Like Grant Rice among others we have Alexander rated the king of the pitchers. Never allied with a great team since being yanked in under the big tent from Syracuse by the late lamented Horace S. Fogel, Alex has always been a great battler and consistent winner. While this season he is skedaddling along on high. His current notch is 12-2. Grover was first to the 10 mark and he's likewise the first hurler to get his twelfth triumph. Faber bagged his eleventh game yesterday, while the Ten Here are Dauss, Johnson, Vaughn and Mayer. Alex went against the Giants yesterday. Though giving but two blows, he was only able to gain a 1-1 draw. R. Marquard was Grover's vis-a-vis. He gave seven hits, but they failed to net the Phils enough runs to win with.

The Alexander-Marquard duel was really one of the niftiest ones of the year. The Giants bunched both their hits in the first inning, Lobert doubling and scoring on Doyle's single. Thereafter Alex baffled them completely, and Byrne's single and Cravath's triple gave the Phillies their counter.

* * *

The Reds played another bad game and the Pirates tightened their hold on fourth position. The entire Herzog infield allowed "Doc" Johnston's pop similar to drop untouched in No. 2 and two runs came in. The defeat was Pittsburgh's margin at the close. Viox's batting and Killifer's fielding were the main features.

* * *

Fielder Allison Jones is again basking in the bright effulgent rays of baldom's spotlight. A winner in Chicago and a manager who always kept the pay roll down, Fielder took charge of the [illegible] St. Louis Feds in the midst of the 1914 scramble after good old Mordecai Brown proved that he was not enough of a disciplinarian to get by as a manager, and he already has transformed them into a winner. Not few of Brown's players remain. Jones has picked up some brawlers who are exhibiting the winning article and their paychecks are not inflated, either. Hence, he must be credited with being the same woozy wiz as of yore.

* * *

The Columbus players have accepted a cut in salaries and now every American Association club has a reduced payroll. Prexy Chivington gave it out cold a week ago that the organization might blow if the players didn't stand to have their salaries slashed. Other minor bodies, and the International more than likely, will doubtless pattern after the Association's lead.

Sam Langford to Meet Sam M'Vea at Atlas A. A.

Sam Langford and Sam McVea, the famous negro heavyweights, have been matched to clash in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The tussle was arranged after more than a month's dickering between the management of the local club and the managers of the rival boxers. As Langford and McVea are both open fighters and hard punchers, they should furnish a slashing bout.

Dave Powers of Malden will meet George Alger of Cambridge in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. There will also be two six-round contests. "Young" Clancy of the North End will clash with "Young" Brown of Revere, while Howard McRae, the Cambridge boxer, will entertain "Young" Stone of Providence.

SOMERVILLE HIGH IN TITLE BATTLE

GAMES TODAY.

Everett at Somerville (Triangular).
Salem at Beverly.
Milford at Framingham (Midland).
Sacred Heart Academy at Westboro.

Somerville High now stands one game to the good in the Suburban League school race, and with but one more contest to play is being hailed as a pennant winner by its many supporters. Not so, however, by the Everett High baseball squad and its aggregation of followers. For, while Cleo O'Donnell and his intimates admit that the boys of the Red and Blue have shown considerable speed in their exhibitions throughout the season, they are but a trifle backward in extollation of their own team's all-round playing, and notwithstanding the fact that the rivals have the advantage of a one game lead, are more than optimistic of the ability of their players of bringing the percentage columns of the two teams to a tie with the close of their battle with Somerville today.

EVERETT WIN MEANS PLAY-OFF.

The final scheduled contest between the league leaders is slated to take place this afternoon on the Somerville grounds. In event of an Everett victory it will necessitate a play-off between the two teams on neutral grounds.

Captain Fitzgerald of the Somerville nine, who of late has been slugging to the mound in nearly every contest and incidentally bringing home a victory with health every try, is the best bet in the box in today's battle.

In case, however, the opponents begin pounding Captain Fitzgerald's slants too severely, Somerville has plenty more premier twirlers to send to the rescue. In fact the pitching end of the game is Somerville's strong card and the one through which they hope to have no trouble in annexing a victory.

PLACES FAITH IN BATSMEN.

Everett, on the other hand, is equally hopeful of the capability of her batsmen who, according to hearsay, are some clouters to drive all offerings of all opposing [illegible] in all parts of the field.

[illegible] Dalton, the wonderful freshman pitcher, will wear the Everett colors on the mound. [illegible] is conceded, even by his rivals, to be not only a remarkable twirler as a freshman but in fact one of the strongest the league has ever known.

Mr. Lichtenheim Wants to Laugh

Mr. Sam Lichtenheim, owner of the Montreal club of the International League, is in Boston. The International is not enjoying what may be called an easy financial season.

"What brings you to Boston?" inquired a friend of Mr. Lichtenheim at Fenway Park yesterday.

"Oh, I just dropped in to have a laugh. There's nothing to laugh at in our league."

George Winters Released.

TROY, N. Y., June 23.—Manager [illegible] of the Troy State League team has released George Winters, the veteran pitcher [illegible]. It is reported that Winters has received offers from the Twin State and Colonial Leagues to fill the position of manager and that he will accept one of them.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the eleventh of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

A Simple Exercise That Will Vastly Benefit One Digestion.

After having in your first exercise dragged your arms vertically out of their sockets, and done your best to separate your abdomen from your hip bones in the same direction, you will be ready for the second exercise, the main feature of which will seem to you to consist in a determined effort to split yourself up the back.

You cannot quite do it; but during your preliminary trials you will feel as if you were doing it and breaking a few bones into the bargain.

In this as in other exercise you must put a certain rigidity into your body before making the movement; and the movement will aim to overcome this rigidity. Don't weakly give way to the pull which you are going to make, but fight against it, and do not yield until you have to. In "free" exercises you are your own gymnasium and apparatus; you must supply from your own resources the place of the dumbbells and bars. Every pull or push you make must meet with a pull or push in the opposite direction. But the pull or push must always be strong enough to overcome the resisting push or pull; otherwise nothing is gained. As I have said, the principle of all exercise is resistance to gravitation; dumbbells are gravitation in condensed form. In this exercise, one half of you makes [illegible] under the gravitational banner, while the other half contends against it. This situation will keep your mind fully occupied, so as to be sure that you are playing fair, and getting out of the exercise all there is in it. And by keeping your attention on those parts of the body or limbs which are getting the most work, you will hasten the process of their development.

Now, then, stand erect, and stiffen yourself all over, knees, back, shoulders and neck. Hold out your arms straight in front of you horizontally, and let them vary as little as possible from the horizontal during the movement. Under no temptation are you to allow your backbone to depart from a vertical position, any more than you would if there were the point of a bayonet a quarter of an inch in front of your navel, which would run into you if you inclined yourself forward.

Drag your right shoulder straight forward as far as you can get, causing the fingertips of your left hand to pass from their original position in contact with your right fingertips as far back as the "heel" of that hand—the point where it joins the wrist. Be sure that both elbows remain straight all the time. Now do the same with the other shoulder.

That is the exercise. But in dragging the shoulder forward, remember to try to keep it from being dragged forward with all your might, just as if somebody had hold of the hand that is to go forward, and you were resisting his attempt to pull it out of the joint. Your strength to resist him will be just a little less than his to overcome you. And the struggle for mastery will come pretty near splitting you up the back, as aforesaid.

It will also cause the chest muscle to start forward, bring a strain on the deltoid, and on the muscles across the top of back, and on the sides of the body, under the arms. For strengthening these regions it is a better exercise than punching the bag or yanking on the pulley weights, and it makes no noise to disturb peaceable folks. After twenty times, you may stop to breathe and prepare for No. Three.

BOOM COLEMAN AS AD MEN'S HEAD

CHICAGO, June 22.—George W. Coleman of Boston, president of the Boston City Council, is to be sprung at the election of the "ad" men today as a candidate for the presidency of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Herbert S. Houston of New York is the leading candidate, but there is a movement on foot to stampede the convention for Coleman.

There may be a hard contest for positions on the executive committee. Louis E. Kirstein, vice-president of William Filene's Sons & Co. of Boston, is the candidate of the Retail Advertisers' Association, which declares that it has never been represented on an executive committee and demands such representation.

The Pilgrims started pulling work today for the convention of 1920. Boston wants the big meeting during the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims and every Boston adman is busy obtaining pledges from delegates.

Mrs. George Brewster Gallup, president of the Boston Women's Ad Club, has started a movement to organize the Women's Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. It is estimated that there are 300 women attending the ad men's convention and before they leave Chicago Mrs. Gallup expects to have a large number enlisted in the movement. The movement will include the wives of ad men interested in their husband's calling.

At the session of the newspaper section of the convention a standard of practice was adopted. It represents, delegates said, the aims and purposes of most of the newspapers of the United States and the standard is binding on members of the organization. The standard follows:

"To make none but true statements of circulation.

"To maintain advertising rates as published.

"To reject fraudulent advertising.

"To oppose free publicity."

Mr. Owen, who is perhaps as conversant with motor matters in this country as is any other man, is thoroughly satisfied the coming season will be an exceptionally bright one in the industry. On his trip through the West to the East he encountered signs of increased prosperity and increased business, not only in the motor department, but in the general business world.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Governor Walsh's Resolve to Vote for Woman Suffrage

His Announcement Is Entirely Consistent With His Known Liberality and With the Merits of the Cause.

GOVERNOR WALSH'S declaration that he intends to vote for woman suffrage at the coming election certainly does not surprise those who know his political principles.

There is no ground in right or reason on which women who wish to vote may be denied that privilege. The inferior political position of a woman is a relic of old conditions where might made right and physical power was the basis of privilege.

The men of Massachusetts, this Fall, will be called upon to decide whether or not women shall be allowed to vote. Each man must judge this according to his conscience, and it is our high duty to examine the grounds on which we are to make this decision with care and to free it as much as possible from prejudice and pride.

If a man thinks that women are of inferior intelligence, let him question his own personal experience. Let him compare his mother's judgment with his father's judgment in family affairs.

Let him consider his sister's record in school with his own record. It is not fair to compare the average woman's business ability to the business ability of an average man, because the average woman is not called upon to transact BUSINESS in the ordinary sense of that word. The comparison should be made in matters where their opportunities have been equal. If you have no sisters and never went to a school where girls were your classmates, you can learn from any teacher in a mixed school that the average rank of the girls is higher than the average rank of the boys in scholarship.

Women's interest in the State, in good government, is at least as great as a man's. Bad government affects her interest even more than it affects a man's. She has done at least as much to create the nation and its wealth as the men.

If she has equal intelligence to consult her own interest and an unequal interest in the community, then she ought to have an equal right and an equal voice in its government.

But beyond this fundamental question there is a further important consideration which ought to make those women who are opposing woman suffrage a little ashamed of their efforts to deprive their sisters of their rights. Women have been struggling for years to emerge from that old condition in which they were little more than social bric-a-brac or wage slaves. ONE VERY PROXIMATE RESULT OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE WILL BE THE DIGNIFYING OF THE SELF-SUPPORTING WOMAN.

One of the great hardships of the woman's lot is the social distinction that is too often made between the woman who is obliged to support herself and the woman who is supported. This enforces hasty, ill-considered and unhappy marriages and leads to a long train of social evils which costs any community a huge toll. Women need to have their labor made respectable far more than they need the much vaunted, superficial, conventional chivalry.

Governor Walsh's announcement that he will vote for woman suffrage is entirely consistent with his known liberality and with the merits of the cause.

"Boston Should Invest Ten Millions in Streets"

—EBEN D. JORDAN

MR. EBEN D. JORDAN, head of the firm of Jordan Marsh Company, is one of the leading business men in Massachusetts. He has a great stake in the interests of Boston. He has shown in his support of the grand opera and other enterprises how much he wants Boston to compare favorably with other cities of the country.

Like other business men of the city, he, too, is aroused by the condition of our streets. His words on this serious question make a splendid editorial, and we therefore quote them in this column.

"Words fail to express one's feeling when seeing Boston streets after observing the good streets of other large cities. The streets of even small cities are far better than those of Boston. We can name Worcester and Springfield close to our door—and the comparison should shame Boston into action.

"The streets of Boston, as they are, are nothing less than a disgrace. Their lamentably bad condition is also nothing short of a constant menace to life and limb.

"Boston streets are the worst of any city I have visited in this country.

"There should be no delay. They should be improved at once.

"Tourists gauge cities they visit by their streets.

"Visitors in Boston get their first impressions from the streets. Arriving, we will say, at the South Station, they then ride over streets which to say the least are calculated to give them but a very poor opinion of our city.

"They never lose these first impressions. Boston has many things of which we are all proud, and strangers see these and admire them. But they leave us, to tell their friends not only about the good things they saw but about how terrible are our streets.

"This will be more true this Summer in all likelihood than ever before in the city's history. Thousands will come who never came before. Many will be tourists who are wont to go abroad, but who cannot go now because of the war.

"All of them will be struck by Boston's poor streets. I have no doubt most of them, who have heard so much that is good of our city, will be simply amazed to find our streets so bad. Particularly will this be true of those who have traveled abroad and have motored over streets almost as smooth as a billiard table. This kind of motoring most assuredly will not be their experience while they are in Boston.

"Why, our country roads are better than Boston's streets. The Commonwealth is spending millions developing its highways. So striking is the difference between State highways and Boston streets that the motorist can at once sense his passing from one to the other.

"The State keeps its highways uniformly good. The city streets are just the opposite, and the experience of riding over them is more reminiscent of 'bumping the bumps' than of anything else.

"You do not find this in other cities. For instance, when I was in San Francisco this Spring, the streets were smooth and there was no 'bumping' even at the crossings. The streets were smooth throughout, just as you find the streets in Liverpool and other cities abroad.

"It does not require any stretch of the imagination to picture a tourist in Boston, looking up at one of our fine buildings while the automobile in which he is seated takes a 'bump' that sends him bouncing from his seat.

"It seems to me that if Boston had had any civic pride in the past, it would never have allowed the streets to fall into their present disgraceful condition.

"There are many reasons which demand that the streets be improved at the earliest moment possible. In fact, there is EVERY reason why the streets should be improved; there is absolutely NO good reason why this much needed work should be put off.

"There are few investments so advantageous to the city as good streets. They help business, just as bad streets hurt business. Good streets mean less dust and better public health. Good streets increase the comfort of both pedestrians and motorists.

"This is the time for action, for constructive effort. There is a responsibility which is all-important—the responsibility of those whose duty it is to see that the streets are improved NOW. Let those authorities act who have the power to give Boston better streets. Let them act at once.

"Present street conditions in Boston are such as to demand emergency treatment. Let those who have the authority apply the remedy as soon as possible.

"In this urgent matter don't let us put off until tomorrow what we ought to do and what we can do today. Money spent NOW for permanent street work will be indeed wisely expended.

"Immediate street improvements are a duty and a necessity."

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Full Many a Gem, Etc.

I'VE memorized a little speech, whose biting wit will balk
The windiest barber's tongue before he fairly starts to talk.
It mocks the sure suggestion that my hair is thin on top,
It jests at all the nostrums that he keeps around the shop;
It's filled with subtle irony designed to make him cringe
The moment he insists I need a sea-foam or a singe.
But I have never used it yet, the rascals never say
A single word to me, except: "Hair cut, or shave today?"

I'VE thought up what I mean to say when plumbers come to mend
A leaky kitchen faucet and hang 'round for days on end.
I shall allude to Captain Kidd, refer to Jesse James,
And talk about the wickedness of con and bunco games.
I'll say if all these scoundrels were combined in one mad mob
They couldn't start with plumbers who are loafing on a job.
But I have never said these things; such plumbers as I've hired
Have done both cheap and honest work, and gracefully retired.

I'VE made, in stern and iron prose, a stinging hymn of hate,
To paralyze the office boy if he should come in late.
It deals with sluggards and with ants; it proves that vice and crime
Are sure to gobble office boys who don't show up in time.
It probes each possible excuse and finds them weak and lame,
It ought to make him color up and hang his head in shame.
But I have never had a chance to spring that hymn of mine;
The boy gets down to work at eight, and I blow in at nine!

Woman, First to Heal, Has Right to Place in Medical Profession

Suffering for Hundreds of Years Made Strike of Sex for Appropriate Honors and Privileges Necessary and Just—Few Now Oppose Her Progress.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

A GREAT many people in America belonging to the old-fashioned schools of thought object to the prominence of women in the trades, professions, sciences and arts today.

They fear that she is getting out of her "true sphere," the home, and that the best interests of the race are jeopardized. The first advent of women into the science of medicine was met by violent opposition from this class of people, then a much larger class than it is today.

But how about the condition of woman, and the condition of the race, before the "Strike of the Sex" was inaugurated? How about the condition of the sex and the race in Oriental countries, where woman is kept in her "proper sphere," that of the breeder of the species?

Civilization has its glaring defects.

The strike of the sex has been marked by unpleasant features; the prominence of woman everywhere and her intrusion into all places and occupations is frequently offensive, and her liberty at times verges on license. But when we decry civilization with all its vices of money worship, its false standards of life, its superficial religions, its sweatshops, its slaughter houses, its divorce courts and ten thousand other evils, we need to turn the leaves of history back a few hundred years and look on the conditions of woman in the middle ages.

For a thousand years the world had no healer save the "Sorceress."

If she cured she was called the "Wise Woman."

If she failed to cure she was called a "Witch" and killed.

Remy, the Judge of Lorraine, burned 800 of them about 300 years ago.

Can we wonder at the low plane poor woman occupied for so many centuries?

And how can we decry our own century, which has placed woman in the chair of the medical faculty and given her the privileges and the right to know all that men of science know regarding the care and preservation of the human body?

It was really woman who was the first physician.

While the men hunted and fought she bore her children and lived much alone, and dreamed dreams and developed her clairvoyant sight, and learned many things by her intuition with nature which science blundered along and learned by slow experiment hundreds of years later.

And when she failed to cure all human ailments with her strangely gained knowledge she was tortured and murdered as a sorceress.

Poor woman, what a fiery path had she trod up to the present proud position in the civilized world.

For it is a proud position, despite all the imperfections of the great systems; imperfections which will only be righted after two or three hundred years pass by.

The word sorcery in its original meaning is "ill thinking on matters of faith."

Worship of Satan By Half-Mad People

Ill thinking meant in those days (only 300 years ago, and still more recently in Salem) thinking differently from the majority. Michelet says in his history:

"In the fourteenth century woman sees opening before her a long and terrible career of punishments and torments. Subsequently to 1300 her medicines are adjudged to be mischievous, her remedies condemned as poisons. The harmless spells whereby the lepers tried to alleviate their sufferings led to the massacre of those unhappy beings."

It is no wonder that a worship of Satan was organized and satanic orgies indulged in by the half-mad people.

"By a monstrous perversion of ideas," says Michelet, "the Middle Age regarded the flesh (in its representative woman accursed of Eve) as radically impure."

Woman herself came to share the odium and prejudice of the theologians and believed herself unclean.

So she lurked in hiding at the hour of childbirth, blushing at the thought of maternity, fain to ask pardon for existing at all and for fulfilling the conditions of life.

A submissive martyr to false modesty, she was forever torturing herself and endeavoring to conceal the adorable signs of womanhood.

Mediaeval medicine concerned itself with men, sometimes with animals, never with woman.

The Sorceress, the first woman physician, perished forever, but not so the fairy. The art of healing is woman's true priesthood, hers by divine right. She will pursue the silences and bring into their domain gentleness and humility. The feeling is taking root that all questions go back to the great fundamental questions—education, organization, the woman, the child.

Surely, looking back across the centuries, woman in our present day civilization, with all its imperfections, need not sigh for the "good old days gone by."

Statistics of the United States Commission of Education of 1913 tell us that twenty State universities are now open to women. Out of four hundred and eighty educational colleges, three hundred and thirty-six have admitted women.

The proportion of women students, to the total number of college students is nearly 25 per cent.

Women as Strong in Body and Mind

The uniform experience of coeducational colleges shows the average standing of women students as slightly higher than that of men, and shows that while undergoing the same tests there is no larger percentage of withdrawal on account of sickness.

Dr. Emmet Densmore tells us in his "Sex Equality" some interesting things about the privileges women enjoy today in various countries.

In Canada and Australia all the universities admit woman co-equal with men.

London University, Victoria University and Cambridge admit women to nearly all the courses.

Four Scottish universities admit them.

In France women are admitted to lectures on equal terms.

In Germany special permission from various authorities must be obtained, and much opposition to woman's higher education exists.

In Austria women are allowed as hearers, and forty women students were registered in Vienna in one year.

In Russia woman has had small hope of educational advantages, because of political troubles. But that will soon change. All Oriental countries oppose the education of women.

Hungary, Switzerland, Sweden, Denmark and Spain admit women.

What a change from the condition occupied a few hundred years ago in the world. Who would want to return to old ideas and traditions?
